Accepting the gift is Beverly Shea, librarian. Other memorabilia she brought were: program booklets from the grand opening of the new high school in 1951, a table of tides from the fifties, a program of studies booklet from the High School when it was in the Swain School. She is setting up a perpetual scholarship in her name. The first of which she will be presenting at the convocation on June 10th.

Board of Health backs off on smoking rules

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Wilmington Board of Health Tuesday granted the town's adult smokers, restaurant and convenience store owners a reprieve in the form of amendments to its proposed smoking regulations.

The board, acting without voting member Milton Calder, approved amendments that will order Wilmington food service establishments to reserve 50 percent of their existing seating as smoke-free; require free-standing cigarette displays to be adjacent to store counters and in plain sight of employees; and removes a ban on the discount sale of cigarettes. Initial proposals contained outright bans on restaurant smoking, free-standing displays and retail discounts on cigarettes.

"It's only fair and equitable that we have a level playing field," Board of Health Chairman Dr. James Ficociello said in reference to the amendments aimed at protecting Wilmington's small businesses from potential revenue losses to establishments in town's with less stringent tobacco regulations.

But Dr. Ficociello also said that if surrounding communities united in a regional smoke-free campaign, the Wilmington Board of Health would pursue at least smoke-free restaurants in town. The amended regulations will be open for further amendments, Ficociello also stated.

In fact, with an addition, the proposed regulation is setting a $300 fine for the sale of any tobacco product to any person under 18 years old. Tobacco gifts to persons under 18 are now also forbidden, with the $300 fine applicable to the giver.

Ficociello indicated the board's main objective is still to prevent minors from obtaining cigarettes.

Tactics for achieving this objective include the mandatory placement of cigarette vending machines "in plain view and control of a responsible employee." Penalties for selling cigarettes to minors through vending machines start at a $300 fine for a first offense, one-year removal of a machine for a second offense within a two-year period of the first, and permanent removal for a third offense within the same two-year period.

The board of health will also be setting-up and executing "sting operations" designed to snare businesses selling cigarettes to minors.

"Kids in Wilmington aren't going to smoke until they're 18; after that, it's their choice if they want to contaminate their bodies," he said.

The board of health also finalized approval of regulations on massage therapy.

Representatives of Wilmington's Less-Stress Wellness Center, which opened for business in January of this year, helped stipulate the regulations.

Massage therapists in Wilmington are now required to be certified with proper training under the guidelines of the Massachusetts Department of Education. Each Less-Stress massage therapist has carries such credentials.

Cleanliness standards for massage therapy centers were also set.

According to Less-Stress Director Linda Coughlin, the new regulations will offer protection and credibility to her business against "fringe operations," including "New Age" healers, and also provide peace of mind for prospective clients.

St. Thomas Church will host Sister Rzeznik

Tuesday evening, April 26th at seven o'clock, St. Thomas Church in Wilmington will host Sister Roberta Rzeznik. Sr. Rzeznik, experienced in pastoral ministry and spirituality, will speak on the Divine invitation to be with God in prayer.

This will also include adoration of the Eucharist through Benediction. A light refreshment will be served. All are welcome.

TO THE VOTERS OF WILMINGTON

Thank you for your vote of confidence I will continue to work on your behalf as a member of the Board of Selectmen. I am looking forward to working in partnership with the entire Board for the best interest of Wilmington.

Bob Cain

Cain wins by 35

by Jeff Nazzaro

Selectman Robert Cain was reelected by 35 votes in a tight four-candidate race for selectman and the proposed $575,000 Proposition 2 1/2 override died convincingly as 42 percent of Wilmington's eligible voters took to the polls Saturday. In the only other contested race, Wilmington High School Athletic Director Jim Gillis out-paced Jim Murray and Judson Miller by collecting 35 percent of the vote.

A mere 161 votes separated Cain from fourth-place finisher Tom Siracusa, while 146 ballots were returned unmarked for the selectmen's race.

Police Sergeant James Rooney garnered 35 favorable nods too few in losing to Cain by less than one percent of the vote. Tony Capuano finished third, trailing Cain by only 98 votes and two percentage points. Cain, who had previously said his current term as selectmen would be his last, was elected to a sixth term Saturday. When asked if this new term would be his last, Cain replied, "never say never."

Wilmington voters said a resolute "no" to a Prop. 2 1/2 override that would have raised individual property taxes an average of $44 a year. Fifty-four percent voted against, while 39 percent sided with the override. An additional seven percent left the question unanswered.

Still, the 54 percent showing against the override answered the question raised by the school committee and placed on the ballot by the board of selectmen. Now, that same school committee must answer to growing space needs problems in Wilmington's elementary schools.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Geraldine O'Donnell has previously stated that the school department had no contingency plan if the override failed. Indeed, no monies were allotted in the school budget for handling burgeoning class sizes.

According to O'Donnell, 17 of Wilmington's 67 elementary school classrooms will have class size ratios of between 27 and 34 students to one teacher for the 1994-95 school year. The school department was shooting for class sizes of no more than 25 students.

In the remaining three races, all uncontested, Moderator James Stewart gained reelection with 71 percent of the vote; Robert Surran took 2,789 votes (58 percent) and Madeleine Leger received 2,399 (50 percent), with both gaining school committee seats; and Melvin Keough accepted the final two years of an unexpired term on the housing authority, receiving support from 2,948 of the 4,796 eligible persons who voted.

"Eddie" coming to Wilmington High

A play about a 16-year-old Rhode Island youth who died from substance abuse will be presented at Wilmington High School Monday, May 9, twice in the morning for students and teachers and again at 7:30 p.m. for parents and the general public.

The play, Eddie, is a production of Impact, a Rhode Island based improvisational musical performance group which calls itself a "catalyst for action against substance abuse." Impact brings its own director, producer, title role actor, and singer/musician. The rest of the cast and crew will be composed of students at the high school. Over an eight to 10 hour rehearsal period, Impact will work with students on understanding the play's story and improvising its scenes.

According to Stoddard Melhado, SADD Advisor, at Wilmington High School, "the play is intended to increase understanding and awareness of substance abuse, provide specific information on its signs and effects, propose lifestyles and attitudes that can prevent dependence on drugs, and give students, teachers, and parents a chance to work together on a project to combat the growing menace of substance abuse.

Eddie has been performed in over 500 schools in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Michigan, Georgia, and North Carolina.

There is no admission charge for the public performance on May 9 at 7:30 p.m. in WHS' Barrows Auditorium. For more information call 694-6060.

Back to the hey days of Scollay Square. Wilmington residents are invited to visit the infamous entertainment area of Boston at a free slide/lecture on April 28.

Sarah D.J. Carter Lecture, April 28

The days of old Scollay Square, the entertainment center of Boston during the early 1900s, may be long gone but definitely not forgotten. If you were one of the boys who skipped school to visit the Old Howard, you remember it. Or perhaps you've heard your brothers or fathers relate tales about this "bawdy" place. That is what happened to David Kruh, author of "Always Something Doing...a History of Boston's Infamous Scollay Square" who will present a slide/lecture at the Barrows Auditorium in Wilmington High School Thursday, April 28 at 8 p.m.

His curiosity was peaked after hearing stories from his uncle, a sailor who was among the 10,000 servicemen who visited the "Combat Zone" every week during World War II.

The words Scollay Square may bring to mind vaudeville shows, burlesque houses, tattoo parlors, strippers, White Castle hamburgers, hot dogs at Joe and Nemo's and Jack's Joke Shop, but Mr. Kruh will bring you much more. He will enlighten you also with some of the earlier historical background which might surprise you. He has researched thoroughly, interviewed widely, collected post cards, maps, stories and uncovered many never before published photos. Perhaps you knew that Alexander Graham Bell and Thomas Edison had a shop here or that opera was sung at the Casino Theater. Did you know about tipsy stripper who fell into the orchestra pit and the sailor who woke up with a pink tattoo or the fire that was put out with beer?

The Sarah D.J. Carter Lecture Fund Committee offers this program free of charge and invites everyone to a fun-filled evening about this "naughty" but harmless section of Boston's old West End.

They were at the live telecast by WCTV of the election results. This photo was taken just after the totals from the machines were tallied. Haldane had been campaigning for the then leader, Bob Cain. Siracusa was far enough behind to have no hope of a victory with only the absentee ballots left to count.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS

NOW, ABOUT NEXT YEAR'S TAX BILL

It's clean slate time. Last year's taxes are paid and you can concentrate your energies on cutting next year's bill. Planning now can pay off in tax savings in April '95.

Best bet are the adjustments to income that come off the top, mostly contributions to tax deferred retirement savings plans like your company's 401(k), an IRA, a Keogh or other plan. This lowers your taxable income and your adjusted gross income (AGI) to permit larger deductions for medical, casualty or miscellaneous expenses. Try to make the maximum contribution; use investment income for living expenses if you have to and put more in the tax-deferred plan.

Those in the 28 percent or higher bracket might do well with municipal bonds for improved after-tax returns. It makes sense for Social Security beneficiaries, too. Even though tax free income is counted when determining what percentage of benefits is taxed, munis usually offer more usable income at a lower gross than taxable instruments.

Making the taxable bond or muni decision should be based on the best, safest, after tax yields available. See us for tax saving ideas at

It's good to be back

by Stu Neilson

Well, I'm back in town... though I never left. Well, this time anyway. I live in precinct 6, newly returned from Reading and Not. Reading. I live in Not Wilmington. But I was not alone. There were over a thousand voters who lived in Rob Krekorian's district of Reading, Not Reading and the other part.

As of this past election day (Saturday) the sixth precinct in Wilmington is really represented by Jim Miceli. You thought you were all along. But several of you did vote last month for Brad Jones, who took the seat vacated by Rob Krekorian.

Krekorian found the job ($40,000±) too taxing and not lucrative enough to continue. So, he asked Uncle Bill (Weld) for a job and now he's the Part Time Sheriff of Middlesex County! Isn't life strange?

But, now were back! Only those poor souls who live in Burlington don't live in Wilmington. If you don't follow this then perhaps you don't understand redistricting! OK! So none of us understand what the legislature is doing. Maybe, they don't either. Let's see what the odds are in the Fitchburg Casino in '95.

Stay tuned to C-Span. I wish I lived in Tewksbury, where all is beautiful all year round, and I'll be happy to see those nice young men in their clean white coats and they're coming to take me away, ha ha, to the funny...Oops... That's in Tewksbury now, too!

Goose hunting

by Stu Neilson

The Finance Committee and the Town Manager have agreed to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. Wilmington has several claims to fame: a low residential tax rate, good schools, excellent water, very good fire and police protection and one of the most active recreation departments in the state. But, now there is a financial crisis and somebody's got to go!

Ron Swasey's position is that of department head; department of one and a half people, with a budget of $79,000. Being a department head, Swasey's salary is a line item in the budget part of the town meeting warrant. You can look it up in that booklet the finance committee mailed you last week.

The FinCom proposes to save that salary by eliminating the position. The idea is to "de-centralize" the department. The secretary (part time) would take over as coordinator (and need a salary increase.) The Recreation Commissioners (volunteers who meet one night a month) would take on administrative duties. I have been told by one "commissioner" that he and the rest will quit if Swasey goes.

Other department heads would then take up the rest of the slack. That sounds good on paper, but I cannot imagine Lynn Duncan being the Planning / Conservation / Volleyball Director. Isn't it enough to ask her to take on two jobs?

That just won't work.

Swasey has been the Recreation Director for 23 years. He earns about what a teacher in Wilmington earns, given that he also has a Master's Degree in his field. He works five days a week, from 8:30 to 5 and more. He works weekends. He gets a lot more than 180 days in. He knows the ropes, knows the ins and outs of fund raising and has run his department in the black despite Prop 2 1/2. He raises more money through users fees and donations than he spends.

Swasey saves money for Wilmington people. Through the Recreation Department Wilmington residents get discount and free passes to dozens of entertainment places. His replacements cannot accomplish that. The Recreation Dept. would cost the town all the allocated funds and not provide near the volume or quality of service as we get now.

But now we've got to find some money. How about an early retirement of one of the "Cadillac Club." Those guys are bringing home more than Swasey, and I'll bet they don't do any fund raising.

Before we go looking for someone to dump, let's look at the quality of the job they are doing.

letter to the editor

An open letter to the parents from the Parents Advisory Council at Shawsheen Tech:

This is a reply to some derogatory remarks recently made by the principal of Wilmington High School regarding Shawsheen Valley Technical High School. We would like to respond to those remarks.

We, as parents of students at Shawsheen Tech who care deeply about our children's futures, would like you, as parents and taxpayers of this area, to know how we feel about Shawsheen Tech.

*Shawsheen Tech is a public high school where students can receive an excellent academic education and go on to college if they choose.

*Shawsheen also provides students with excellent skills in specific areas which allow them to enter the job market in that particular field.

*This two-in-one education is a great advantage for students who wish to work while pursuing a college education.

Like most of you, we weren't very familiar with Shawsheen Tech before our children started here and probably had the same questions and concerns you may have.

*Technical students do work just as hard as students in a traditional high school and sometimes harder since they carry a full load of academics one week - with no study halls - and then a full week of vocational technical training the next week also with no study halls.

*Shawsheen is a place to learn.

*Although a higher percentage of students from traditional high schools than vocational schools go directly to college following graduation, about 50 percent of them will never graduate. (national statistic). Most vocational students who go to college do finish.

*The past 10 years shows 94 percent of our graduates are working in high skill jobs or have gone on to further schooling. The highest placement in the state of Massachusetts. Results speak louder than words.

*Shawsheen Tech teaches skills that help students get and keep jobs - problem solving, good work habits, self esteem, working as a team member, and responsibility. They train for the world of work and that's the world we all go to eventually.

*In the world of work today, we hear all the time how people need specific technical skills to succeed. Shawsheen teachers these skills in 19 career programs.

We urge you to check out Shawsheen Tech as a possible choice for your child - or call one of us:

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Woodside, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Branley, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dellascio, Mr. and Mrs. John Delorey, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Power, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Ciaramaglia, Margaret Wilson, Angela Barletta.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to commend the students and teachers of Team 7C, particularly Mrs. Joy White, on their Cultural Heritage Celebration exhibit recently held in the Wynn Middle School cafeteria.

The exhibits were truly spectacular - including research on the students' countries of origin, personal interviews with family members, foods, currency, music and dance, immigration and naturalization records and cultural artifacts. They displayed their cultural heritages and ethnic diversity, yet demonstrated how the United States has indeed become a melting pot with a wide variety of peoples.

What a wonderful way to learn tolerance and understanding of others! Whether families began as common laborers traveling in steerage with no knowledge of English or wealthy vineyard owners; have lived in the United States for generations or are recent immigrants we have all come to settle in Tewksbury and become Americans.

Congratulations to all on a job well done and an impressive exhibit!

Elizabeth Robinson

Dear Larz:

The voters of Wilmington will be called upon at Town Meeting to approve a Wetland Bylaw, which could ultimately affect the property rights of every Wilmington resident.

What disturbs me about the bylaw/regulations, drafted by the Wilmington Conservation Commission is, despite numerous public meetings, the Commission has not decided on a format to implement this substantial change in the Wetlands Regulation.

As recently as April 13, the Commission proposed yet another change to the bylaw regulations by suggesting that an additional advisory board be formed to review what the Conservation Commission decides at a public hearing.

The reason this proposed structure by the Conservation Commission sounds familiar, is that we already have an agency in place with that responsibility. This agency is called the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Yes, since

This reprint of a cartoon published last August shows a man in uniform and chef's hat cooking. The resemblance to Ron Swasey is more than uncanny. Swasey is the man who puts it all together - just one more of the many hats (helmets) he wears.

Massachusetts General Law Chapter 131, Section 40 et. seq. was created, this administrative agency has reviewed appeals and the concerns of Conservation Commissions and neighbors alike in an efficient manner, utilizing experts to determine whether local commissions have complied with state law and state regulations.

Wilmington's new proposed bylaw and advisory board is a duplication of the system currently in place and administered by the Department of Environmental Protection, but without the experts and years of experience dealing with wetland values and wetland issues.

The question becomes, why do residents of Wilmington need a wetland bylaw that is a duplicate of current DEP regulations.

If you listen carefully to the Wilmington Conservation Commission, the reason is that one or two applications that they have denied were subsequently approved by the experts. Yet, the Wilmington Conservation Commission did not make use of the current system to appeal those decisions to the DEP.

Unfortunately, I do not agree that every Wilmington resident's property rights should be effected because the experts at the DEP decided to override a decision or two of the Wilmington Conservation Commission in the last several years.

Call me crazy, but I don't believe a new layer of bureaucracy consisting of a new board and additional members need be created or legislation enacted to appease a few members of the Conservation Commission, who may have been insulted by the DEP's expert opinion that the commission's decision may have been contrary to state regulations and state law.

Let's face it, every time a bylaw is enacted, it places restrictions on what you are allowed to do. It's a rare occasion indeed that new rights are created by enacting a bylaw.

The current Wetland Protection

Act, Massachusetts General Law 131, Section 40, et. seq. was implemented with cooperation and input of the most experienced individuals in their fields. It is impractical to think that this operating scheme should be abandoned or altered in any form by a wetland bylaw with proposed regulations that are in some material respects 20 times more restrictive than the current rules. The proposed bylaw/regulation would classify a 500 cubic foot puddle (18 feet by 18 feet by 18 inches deep in your yard as a protected area, even if it isn't adjacent or near a wetland.

In conclusion, I do not and will not support the proposed Wilmington Wetland Bylaw/Regulation at town meeting and call upon the residents of the Town of Wilmington to think very carefully, whether or not they need a regulatory board dictating what can or cannot be done in their own back yard.

Sincerely,
William K. Irwin, Jr.

Wilmington Conservation Commission presents answers to common questions

Commonly asked questions regarding the Proposed Wetland Bylaw and Regulations or What you were afraid to ask at a Public Meeting.

1. Why should we protect wetlands?

Wetlands act as sponges absorbing flood waters thereby preventing damage to houses. Wetlands also filter pollutants out of water thereby maintaining water quality. They act as recharge areas to protect water supplies and they provide wildlife habitat. They also provide recreation opportunities where public open space is often unaffordable.

2. Why is the Conservation Commission proposing a bylaw?

The Commission feels that the State Wetlands Protection Act does not protect wetlands in Wilmington enough. The State regulations are considered a "minimum standard" and over 100 communities in the State have adopted bylaws to additionally protect wetlands including adjacent communities such as Tewksbury, Burlington, Woburn, Reading and North Reading. The bylaw would ensure local protection of wetlands even if the State regulations were weakened. The State Wetland Protection Act currently allows filling of up to 5,000 square feet of wetlands if replication is proposed. The bylaw would further protect certain types of wetlands such as isolated wetlands, and would allow the Commission to issue fines for projects that are in violation. In addition, the bylaw would allow the Commission to establish a 15 foot setback from wetlands and an additional 10 foot structure setback. This would prevent construction impacts and would help protect the public interests of flood control, water quality and wildlife habitat.

3. Does this mean I can't do anything within 100 feet of wetlands? That's my whole yard!

No - not at all. The Commission wants to restrict work only within 25 feet of wetlands. In fact, if you propose a shed that is considered a "minor project" more than 25 feet from the wetlands all you will have to do is notify the Commission - you will no longer have to file an application and attend a hearing as you currently do if you propose work within 100 feet of wetlands. If you have nowhere else to place the shed except within the 25 foot setback, the Conservation Commission could consider your application under its hardship clause.

4. Will there be additional fees?

There will be no additional filing fees. Minor projects at least 25 feet from wetlands won't have to file anymore - simply notify the Commission. The Commission will be able to issue fines for violations.

5. What has the process been to develop the bylaw?

A bylaw subcommittee (formed two years ago) of the Conservation Commission started meeting publicly to develop the bylaw in July of 1993. Once they had drafted the bylaw it was presented to the Board of Selectmen in January and made available to the public. Copies of the bylaw were given to department heads for comment and the Commission mailed copies of press releases regarding public informational meetings to developers and environmental organizations. The bylaw was based on the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commission's (MACC) model bylaw. As a result of comments received during public informational meetings the Commission revised the bylaw before it went in the Warrant. These changes included the elimination of consulting fees, the use of bonds only for wetland replication and the inclusion of a 15 foot zone of natural vegetation and a 10 foot additional building setback.

6. What will happen next?

Once the bylaw is passed public informational meetings will continue on proposed regulations. The Commission will establish a working group of interested volunteers to develop the draft regulations to be considered by the commission. Regulations provide the details for implementing the bylaw. Regulations can only be enacted if the bylaw is in place. The Conservation Commission adopts regulations after public hearings but the regulations can be no more stringent than the bylaw which is voted at town meeting.

7. Will I have to stop mowing my grass? What about the permit I received last year?

Existing uses may continue (with the exception of violations such as dumping in wetlands) with no new filing. Permits already received will still be valid and only new additional work will have to file under the bylaw, since a new filing would be required anyway under current State regulations. The effective date of the bylaw will be December 1, 1994. Any permit application received before that date will also not come under the bylaw.

8. What will the appeal process be?

The current appeal process under the State regulations is to Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Appeals can ultimately go to Superior Court, however, under the current State regulations. Under the local bylaw, appeals must be to Superior Court, although State regulations issues will continue to be appealed to DPW. The Conservation Commission has proposed a town based mediation process which would add a level of review before disputes are appealed to Superior Court. After the mediation process appeals to Superior Court would still be available. The working group discussed in answer eight above would develop the mediation process which would be part of the proposed regulations.

Under the current State regulations only one of the small number of appeals in the past few years has involved a project with an existing home. Planning Board, Board of Appeals and Board of Health decisions are all currently appealed directly to Superior Court. As stated above over 100 communities in Massachusetts, including Tewksbury, Burlington, Woburn and Reading have local bylaws with appeals to Superior Court.

Town meeting Saturday

by Jeff Nazzaro
Saturday, from 10:30 a.m. until...later, the gymnasium at Wilmington High School will be abuzz with the business of local government as town officials and voters wade through some 50-odd Town Warrant articles at Annual Town Meeting.

The hot topics at this year's event could well be capital outlay (the purchase of police cruisers, etc.), a conservation commission-proposed Wetlands Protection By-law, and proposed zoning changes that would create a new Central Business District.

Last week, the finance committee recommended the purchase of three police cruisers, at $50,000, instead of the five (carrying a $76,055 price tag) proposed by Town Manager Michael Caira.

However Tuesday, in a meeting with the finance committee, Caira finagled the other two police cruisers he sought, after a 5-1 FinCom vote. A portion of the funds for the cruisers would come from available fund; for capital outlay.

Voters will decide the cruiser issue plus those of purchasing fire department and DPW equipment under Article 6 of the Town Warrant.

Members of the conservation commission will address Town Meeting on the merits of that board's proposed Wetlands Protection by-law.

The proposal, according to Article 18, by which it will be represented, seeks to "...protect additional resource areas, for additional values, with additional standards and procedures more comprehensive than those of the [Massachusetts] Wetlands Protection Act..."

The most controversial difference between the proposed by-law and the Mass. General Law it would replace is the appeal process under each. The new law would send appeals made to the Wilmington Conservation Commission to State Superior Court, not to the State

Environmental Protection Agency, as current state law mandates.

Opponents, led by real estate developers, say the proposed law accomplishes the same things as the existing law, but includes the costly (for both parties) possibility of Superior Court appeals.

But the conservation commission says a minimal percentage of its decisions are appealed, and the new law is necessary for protecting Wilmington's wetlands.

Lynn Duncan, who is Planning and Conservation Director will likely have her hands full with the wetlands protection proposal. She will have to switch hats to offer with the planning board and the town center committee a presentation on the creation of a new central business district.

This proposal, under Article 19 of the Town Warrant, entails the amendment of the zoning by-law in 13 separate places and carries the recommended approval of the finance committee.

Never one to miss an election, or the social aspect of greeting the candidates at the polls, Capt. Larz Neilson voted at the Wildwood School in Saturdays election. Being true to his character, he would not divulge to anyone how he voted. Poll workers Ruth Bedell, Jean Draper and Evelyn Conlon were on hand to check voters in. Over 700 voters had passed through precinct 6 as Larz voted just after noon.

Concerts on the common and other programs funded

State Senator John D. O'Brien (D-Andover) has announced that the Tewksbury Cultural Council has received funding. Senator O'Brien has announced that the Massachusetts Cultural Council has approved grants for the Tewksbury Cultural Council.

The Tewksbury Cultural Council was selected by the Massachusetts Cultural Council to receive grants for the 1994 fiscal year to support cultural and educational programs for the public. In total, the Tewksbury Cultural Council will be awarded grants exceeding over $8,000. The Tewksbury Cultural Council will benefit from the following:

*$1,500 was allocated to the Tewksbury Homecoming Boosters Association for concerts on the common.

*Several thousand dollars have been allocated to allow school age children in Tewksbury to attend live performances at the Boston Ballet, the Merrimack Repertory Theater, the North Shore Music Theater, and the new England Aquarium.

*$1,200 has been allocated to the Friends of the Tewksbury Library to produce a book of "Historic Tewksbury" sketches by local artists.

*$2,000 was awarded Tewksbury Memorial High School for scholarships for students applying to art schools and to assist with the art display.

*The Lowell Opera Company, Inc. received a grant of $500 for a performance at Tewksbury Hospital Auditorium of the "Best of Broadway."

*The Tewksbury Council on Aging received $300 to conduct classes in wood carving.

*Several residencies with artists at Tewksbury schools have also been funded.

In addition to announcing this funding, Senator O'Brien joins with Ms. JoAnn Brace of the Tewksbury Cultural Council to commend the volunteers of the Tewksbury Cultural Council for their dedication and commitment to sharing the arts with residents of Tewksbury. The input of these dedicated individuals is certainly needed to assure that this worthwhile and vital organization can continue to improve the quality of life in our community and enhance our children's appreciation for the arts.

To the 1201 voters who supported my candidacy for the Board of Selectmen, my sincerest gratitude. The number of people who responded positively to the high standards of our campaign was reassuring. To my family, my committee and everyone else who worked so hard during my campaign, your dedication will never be forgotten. To everyone who has encouraged me to run again next year, thank you for your confidence in me, we'll "keep that door open" as a possibility. Sincerely, Jim Rooney

Nobody knows your lawn like you do.

And nobody knows lawn care like Mahoney's.

No Two Lawns Are Alike.

Come in and tell us what your lawn is like. Sunny or shady. Large or small. On the level or not so level. Wet in spring or dry in summer. On the street or off the back porch. Fact is, different conditions need different lawn care. And whatever shape your lawn is in, Mahoney's has what it takes to keep it green and growing beautifully.

Start From The Ground Up.

Every lawn has its own character, but all good grass begins with good soil, and now is the time for improving it. So pack up a sample of the old sod (see instructions at end of article) and we'll get you started with a free pH test. Then we'll give you a specific recommendation for improving your soil; whether to lime or not, what kind and how much fertilizer to use, and when and why.

Grow A Good Seed.

Mahoney's carries the newest, hardest grass seed varieties. Whether you're looking for a quiet and elegant croquet court, or a low-maintenance playing field that can stand up to kids, we'll help you select a winning seed mix. We'll explain why you'll want annual rye in the blend if you're bringing a new lawn up to par, or when a perennial rye may be the best thing for overseeding established turf.

Of course, you'll find everything else at Mahoney's, from rakes, spreaders and clippers to watering cans, hoses and sprinklers. More importantly, we can tell you what to do with the products and tools we sell.

So come in to Mahoney's and tell us what you're looking for in your lawn, and we'll tell you what you need to know to get it.

For Your Free pH Test:

1. Dig 3" to 5" into your lawn (a dry lawn is best).
2. Take 4 to 5 soil samples of equal amounts from different areas of your lawn.
3. Mix the samples together and bring a total of 1 cup to Mahoney's in a plastic bag.

Goodwill's drop-off hours changed

Area residents interested in donating their clothing and household goods to benefit Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries are now asked to do so between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturdays. The donation trailer, located in the Picadilly Pub parking lot, Route 28, 80 Main St., North Reading is now closed on both Tuesdays and Sundays. As always, donations should be made only during business hours and tax receipts may be obtained from the attendant on duty.

Over the past years, more than 6,774 area residents contributed more than 171,576 pounds of clothing, alone, to benefit Morgan Memorial Goodwill, according to Richard Bowen, vice president of Goodwill's retail division. Bowen remarks, "The public's donations of clothing and household goods are a mainstay to Goodwill's operations. They're able to provide job training and many other human services to people with disabilities and those who are disadvantaged, as a result."

In fact, more than 411 people with disabilities are now working throughout Greater Boston as a result of their participation in Goodwill's job training and placement services. More than 1,000 disadvantaged youth were served through Goodwill's educational and recreational programs, and 8,000 families in need received emergency clothing assistance through Goodwill's outreach activities.

Through public support, Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries has been "working wonders, building futures" for the disabled and disadvantaged for 99 years. Next year, Goodwill celebrates its Centennial of service to the community.

State school volunteer program

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury/Wilmington) has announced that a new state program has officially begun which allows state employees to spend up to seven paid hours per month of work time volunteering in local school systems. The "State School Volunteer Program" is a joint effort between the legislature and the Weld Administration and was formalized as part of last year's Educational Reform Act.

"As our teachers and school administrators continue to do a tremendous job in our schools, hopefully the addition of career professionals will enhance the educational experience of our students," Miceli said.

Initially, 3,000 to 5,000 non-union state employees will be allowed to participate in a pilot volunteer program. As union contracts are renegotiated, union employees could be offered the opportunity to participate in the program.

Secretary of Education Dr. Piedad Robertson recently said of the program, "It is the responsibility of everyone to educate and protect our children. With state employees joining that force, we now have a complete loop with business, community and education leaders, and parents all participating."

According to Rep. Miceli, interested state employees should talk to their supervisors for information on volunteering. After completion of a training program and identification of the host school's needs, volunteers can assist school personnel in administration and/or instruction.

You don't have to leave Wilmington for quality seafood, chicken, steaks, salads, pasta, pizza, subs, and more! Just go to Mancini's... where the food is great, but the meals aren't expensive!

"Try us... you'll be back," says owner, Jim Meehan. Extra time and effort is the reason why. At Mancini's, they take time to make good food - even making their own tartar sauce, house dressing, and chicken, veal, & eggplant parmesan. Why? Because homemade is better than pre-made.

Visit Mancini's dining room for lunch (11am-3pm) and enjoy one of their 1/2-Sub Sandwiches - served with french fries or cole slaw, and soup or chili - all for only $3.99. Or, try one of their luncheon specials... most priced under $5.00

Manncini's proud owners... Jim and Willa Meehan

For dinner, choose from a selection of appetizers, entrees, and delicious desserts. They also have a liquor license, and a children's menu.

"Keno" is coming to Mancini's. They'll be one of the first to watch for an announcement. For now, they are a Lottery Agent and have an "Instant Action" lottery ticket machine.

Mancini's is open daily, 10am to 10pm, and Friday until 11pm. They accept Master Card and Visa on orders of $10.00 or more. They have a full Take-Out Menu, and free delivery within a 4-mile radius. And remember, according to Jim, "If you can't find it here, you're not hungry!"

Wilmington Pet & Garden Supply, Inc.
Colonial Park Mall, Wilmington
(508) 658-5041

Wilmington Pet Supply is a family owned and operated business. Owners Bob and Dianne Autenzio established the shop in 1972. Their sons, Bob, Jr. and Paul, are also involved in the business now... Bob, Jr. is the manager of the shop, and Paul (who owns his own landscaping company), is the reason for their recent expansion into garden supplies and garden (fish pond) pools.

Wilmington Pet Supply carries tropical and salt water fish, aquatic plants, aquariums, reef systems and live coral, small pets, Persian and Himalayan kittens (which are specially bred for the store), and all types of pet supplies, as well as garden supplies and other seasonal items. They also do dog and cat grooming, by appointment.

Regular customers may want to take advantage of Wilmington Pet's VIP Card. The card costs $10.00 per year, and entitles its purchaser to a 10% discount on everything in the store - excluding dog food, which is discounted 5%. There are also special "Pet Food Clubs" which will earn you free pet food from Iams, Eukanuba, Blue Seal, and Sensible Choice brands, and discounts on Science Diet brand.

The friendly staff of Wilmington Pet & Garden Supply, Inc.

Wilmington Pet offers free local delivery on 20, 35 and 40-lb. bags of dog or cat food.

As an added bonus, Wilmington Pet also offers a wide variety of interesting, fun, and educational events such as...

- Seminars (usually monthly) on garden ponds, wild birds, and other topics
- a "Best Dressed Pet" contest complete with fun & games, and land-crab and turtle races - usually in late October
- Christmas pictures (Polaroid) of your pet with Santa (proceeds to charity)
- Professional Pet or Pet/People photographs taken every other month, but in both October and November for Christmas.

Tech wins 24 medals at Skill Olympics

Students at Shawsheen Tech showed their excellence in fields ranging from health care to drafting, and advertising design to diesel mechanics, winning 24 medals for first, second or third place at the Mass. Skill Olympics of Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) April 7-9 in Fitchburg.

Among those placements were 13 gold medals; 10 of those first place winners will represent Massachusetts at the National Skill Olympics in Kansas City, Mo. the last week in June. Shawsheen gold medal winners were: Shawn Mahoney of Wilmington, advertising design; Christopher Nowossa of Tewksbury, air conditioning and refrigeration; Joseph Bardsley of Billerica, diesel mechanics; Holly Canales of Burlington and Shauna Napoli, Andrew Geddy, and Jessica Borden of Tewksbury, Health Occupations Knowledge Bowl; David Walsh, Machine drafting; Dave Sullivan of Wilmington, promotional bulletin board display and Brian West of Billerica, welding.

Additional gold medal winners Elizabeth Hudson of Billerica and April Sickler of Tewksbury (cosmetology under 500 hours) and Mike Mazzone of Billerica (desktop publishing), competed in categories that do not advance to national competition. Doug MacElhiney, a silver medalist in desktop publishing, assisted with the bulletin board display and will travel to nationals in that two person category.

Silver medals and second place also went to Kellyanne Beston of Tewksbury, basic health care; Mandy Trout of Wilmington and Carolyn Campbell of Billerica, cosmetology under 500 hours; and Jessica Rodriguez of Tewksbury, medical assistant.

Coming in third in the state and winning bronze medals were Adam Cooper of Burlington, auto machine shop; Amy Humphrey of Billerica, basic health care; Daniel Kump of Billerica, brick masonry; Shawn Aquaro of Billerica, diesel mechanics; Joseph Dutille of Billerica, residential plumbing; and Steven Couture of Billerica, residential wiring.

Shana Welch of Tewksbury was elected a state officer by the voting delegates who listened to speeches, questioned candidates, and conducted state VICA business. Delegates from Shawsheen included Brian Joyce, Dan Adams, John Desharmais, Sue Elliott, Aimee Chartier, Angela DiDinato and Chuck McCarthy.

"What a great showing - our students not only took many top spots, but competed in a mature and sportsman-like manner," said Charles Lyons, superintendent director who attended the award ceremonies at the Royal Plaza Best Western Hotel April 9. VICA Chapter advisors Ethel Leary and Dennis Solomon were obviously pleased with the results, but noted that all participants made a contribution. "They are all winners to us," said Leary, who presented the entire competing group of about 60 students with a cake following the ceremony. In most categories, students qualified for the state contest by taking first through fourth place at one of three regional competitions last month. The district contest was a written test of technical knowledge; at the states, students were given hands on practical projects in their respective fields. The National Skill Olympics pits statewide winners against one another in practical skill examinations. Some state gold medal winners received scholarships and awards from colleges and manufacturers.

About 650 students were on hand to compete in technical skill and leadership categories, or to serve as voting delegates.

All Around Travel Update

By Peggy Lee - President/Owner

SPRINGTIME IN WASHINGTON

Just recently I finished a short vacation in our Nation's Capitol, Washington D.C. It continues to surprise me, however, to find that with each visit I manage to see and experience something new. This year it was the cherry blossoms and the new capitol dome! (France has nothing on us.)

Springtime in the capitol must truly be one of the most beautiful places in the world. From the numerous historical monuments, museums, and homes to the zoos, the waterways and gardens, the scenery is spectacular! It's probably the only place in the country where you will find the state tree from each state in the nation within walking distance from one another! Located at the U.S. National Arboretum.

The Metrorail system is an inexpensive, convenient means of getting around and it is a must to see! Especially Union Station which is similar to our Faneuil Hall area. "Metro" provides a coordinated transportation system throughout the metropolitan area including suburbs of Maryland and Virginia. The Metrobus provides a well planned series of local bus routes which are timed with Metrorail lines to provide a coordinated public transportation system.

The weather is appealing year round with August traditionally the warmest month. So, whenever you decide to visit, let us help you decide what to do and where to stay. We are located at ALL AROUND TRAVEL, 203 Jefferson Road, N. Wilmington (Rte. 62) or call 658-2313. Office hours are 9-5 Mon-Fri, after hours by appointment.

HINT: Set up Backdoor White House Tour through your local rep. at least two months ahead.

Sean Sullivan promoted despite controversy

by Bill Conlon
Planning Director Sean Sullivan received a long-awaited promotion on Tuesday night, but not without some controversy.

Town Manager David Cressman appointed Sullivan as the Director of Planning & Conservation, effective May 4, which is a promotion from his current job of planning director. The position has been surrounded by controversy for the past six months, and Cressman's appointment ended at least part of the speculation.

The new position oversees both the planning and conservation departments, improving communications between the two building agencies. The position involves a pay raise of $120 per week for Sullivan, but he gives up overtime pay by taking the new post.

No sooner did Cressman make the appointment, however, than Selectman Jay Kelley moved to overturn the decision.

Kelley said that nobody else had applied for the new position, and that Cressman was given few options and little chance for input.

Cressman replied that both the conservation commission and planning boards agreed to combine their two offices into one, and that Sean Sullivan was the logical choice since he has been planning director. The opening was advertised in a local weekly newspaper, Cressman noted, and there was one other applicant.

Selectman Kelley, admitting that he would prefer to make his comments behind closed doors, berated Sullivan for supposedly lackluster job performance, and said that a polling of the boards gave Sullivan a "D+" job rating. Also, Kelley said, by submitting four hours of overtime pay for each board meeting he attended, Sullivan displayed a "take all you can get" attitude toward his job with the town.

Kelley went on to state that Sean Sullivan had signed an affidavit for a lawsuit brought against the town, and that the town didn't know about his involvement until the suit went to court. Signing such an affidavit was cause for termination, Kelley said, not promotion. The legal action was builder Bruce Sullivan (no relation) taking the town to court over work on Harrison Road.

Sullivan, for his part, sat quietly in the front row of the audience in the town hall auditorium, displaying no emotion and making no comments.

Selectmen Joan Dunlevy and Pete Hanson grilled the town manager point by point about the allegations made by Kelley, and shot down all of Kelley's claims.

During the questioning, Cressman said Sullivan voluntarily agreed to give up AFSCME union protection to come under the Personnel Board and answer directly to the town manager. Also, the pay raise that came with the new position would balance out Sullivan's overtime pay, which was given up.

Cressman added that he knew of no official reprimands in Sullivan's personnel file, and had never heard of any.

The vote to overturn Cressman's appointment failed, 4-1, with Kelley casting the sole "aye" vote.

The combined Planning & Conservation position has seen its share of controversy, however. Sullivan was named acting director of the joint position on October 4, 1993, but his formal appointment, and pay raise, were held up until this week. A form was submitted to the board of selectmen on January 19, 1994, signed by Town Manager Cressman and planning board chairman Cheryl L. Busch outlining the pay increase and title change for Sean Sullivan, but a formal appointment to the position was put off until after last week's town elections.

In leaving the meeting, at least one of the planning board members on hand for the discussion said Finance Committee Chairman Joe Gill had played a behind-the-scenes role in the delayed appointment of Sullivan.

Sullivan locked horns with Gill last year, by submitting an article at town meeting to require a seven-day notification period for the Finance Committee's annual round of budget recommendations. Sullivan said the article came about because the Fin-Com had recommended cutting out a secretarial position in the planning office, but the planning board didn't know about the cut until the night of town meeting.

Since then, Sullivan and Gill have publicly tangled more than once, and bad feelings have been obvious.

In fact, on Tuesday night Gill had grumbled that Sean Sullivan had just submitted a voucher for $3,000 in overtime pay for his attendance at meetings of the planning board and the conservation commission, both of which were outside of his normal work hours.

The planning board members who sat through the selectmen's meeting said they had no problems with the way Sullivan has carried out his job duties, and wondered aloud where a "D+" job rating could come from.

Sean Sullivan was quite pleased by the 4-1 vote of support, and said he had been coached against making a public outburst during the meeting of the selectmen. He added that a verbal agreement had been reached with the town manager not to seek retroactive pay because of the delay in making the appointment, which it could be argued was made back in October.

Testing the waters... Selectman Gerry Duggan was on hand at the Wilmington Town Hall Saturday evening as the votes were being tallied. A proponent of the Wilmington Water Department, he had no qualms about drinking from the fountain in the town hall foyer.

An appreciation of Tap Water

by George Allan
OK, I admit it. I drank some bottled water. Not being a fan of bottled water, it was emotionally draining to give in to the lure of the water with the pretty label. How could someone who is such an advocate of tap water do such a thing? Well, let me explain. First of all, I have not shunned Wilmington tap water. I drank bottled water while in Florida. If you have ever had a drink of tap water in Florida, I am sure you have a better appreciation for our water. You can also understand why bottled water is so popular in Florida.

The drinking water in Florida has problems that we don't have in Massachusetts. A major concern in the water's hardness, which has nothing to do with making ice cubes. Hardness makes it difficult (or hard) to make suds for washing. The hardness is caused by high levels of two harmless chemicals - calcium and magnesium. Water treatment plants have been built to remove these chemicals to soften the water. In many places, however, there are no municipal treatment plants. In other areas, the water is not softened enough to suite the customers and home water softeners are quite common. In fact most supermarkets devote an entire aisle to home treatment chemicals and supplies. Sodium is used in home water softeners to replace the calcium and magnesium. The sodium level in the treated water is, therefore, increased. For this reason, many people only soften the hot water.

Another common and noticeable problem with Florida water is hydrogen sulfide and its distinctive rotten egg odor. Even in small amounts it can foul a groundwater supply. The hydrogen sulfide is due to bacteria working on the organic sulfur and sulfates that occur naturally in the ground. Water treatment plants remove the odor by aerating it.

Another interesting aspect of water supply in Florida is the apparent lack of concern about aquifer protection. Wells are located within 15 feet of roadways and only 200 feet from homes. In addition, the land use activities in the surrounding area do not appear to be controlled.

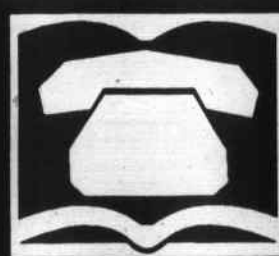

Massachusetts, on the other hand is in the forefront in protecting drinking water supplies. New wells need to go through rigorous testing before approval. The approval process can take as long as 12 months. The state requires that the area contributing (or draining) to a well be determined and it be protected by an Aquifer Protection Bylaw.

The drinking water in Wilmington comes from wells that are processed through two treatment plants. One is on Butters Row and the other is in North Wilmington. Our major problem is high iron levels, which is common in New England. The water is aerated and then chemicals are added to help settle out the iron. The final step in filtration through granular activated carbon. The water leaving both treatment plants meets all federal and state regulations. Indeed, it has met more quality standards than the bottled water at the supermarket.

Many people who buy bottled water say it tastes better than tap water. And yet water taste tests conducted over the years have shown that tap water consistently beats bottled water. The best way to enjoy tap water is to keep it refrigerated in a jug. Try it. You will be pleasantly surprised.

Each year the first week in May is National Drinking Water Week. This might be a good time to rediscover tap water, have a cool tall one and think about the people in Florida.

Off to Concord again, the Wilmington Minutemen marched Saturday morning. They left at the traditional 2:00 a.m. and marched down Church Street. After crossing the bridge at Rt 38, the company stopped. Only the truly hardy continued the 16 miles to Miriam's Corner in Concord. This year they were joined by several members of the Nathaniel Warner Company of Gloucester. The Wilmington police log for Saturday shows several complaints of musket fire, not unusual for Patriots Day Weekend.

St. William's CCD registration

Registration for the fall religious education classes at St. William's Church in Tewksbury has started. Parents of students who will be entering grades one through 10 in the fall should register their children for CCD classes. Classes are held on Monday through Thursday from 4 to 5 p.m. for grades one through four and from 7 to 8 p.m. for grades five through 10; and run from October until early May. Parents are urged to register early because assignment of class day is given on a first come, first served basis; therefore, early registration is important. Registration forms were mailed home to students who are presently in the program. Parents must register their children each year. Ninth grade students from both public and private schools and any other high school student who wishes to receive the Sacrament of Confirmation should register for the classes which will begin in October.

When registering a child for religious education parents should consider becoming a volunteer in the CCD Program. The success of the program at St. William's has been due to the people who volunteer to work. Volunteers are needed as teachers and assistants in every grade; and as babysitters in the afternoon, clerical workers, hall monitors and traffic controllers.

Registration forms are available at the CCD office which is located in the Parish Center. The office is opened Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. To take advantage of an early registration discount, one must register and pay before April 30. For further information, call the CCD office at 851-3471.

"People to People Youth Science" program ambassadors to Australia and New Zealand met with state Sen. John O'Brien recently on Beacon Hill. David Maillet of Billerica (left) will join Brian Banusiewicz and Patrick Nichols, both of Tewksbury, on the trip Down Under.

Young "ambassadors" heading to Australia

by Bill Conlon
Pat Nichols becomes a teenager this year, but he won't be turning 13 in Tewksbury.

Instead, he'll celebrate the big day in the Land Down Under, as part of the People to People Youth Science exchange team.

Patrick, from Florence Avenue in Tewksbury, and Brian Banusiewicz of Wedgewood Road, were selected as student ambassadors to Australia, and are now raising the $4,000 they each need for airfare to Los Angeles and other costs. Bank accounts have been established for the boys at the Andover Bank, and there will be a fund-raising night at Papa Gino's in the Oakdale Mall on May 2, and a bake sale at the Methodist Church at Main and South on May 7.

A total of 33 students from eastern Massachusetts leave for Australia in July for a 21-day expedition, under the People to People exchange program, which was started by President Dwight Eisenhower. The delegation from New England is being led by Jerry Ryan, a science teacher from Haverhill.

The exchange team will stop in Sydney and Auckland, scuba dive off the Great Barrier reef, visit New Zealand, and even spend a night in a Maori native village.

Both boys are honors students at the Wynn Middle School (formerly the junior high) in Tewksbury.

Murder Mystery dinner at Tewksbury United Methodist

The Tewksbury United Methodist Church will be presenting "And the Old Man Died," Saturday, May 14 at 6 p.m. The menu for the evening will be roast beef dinner.

The plot revolves around the fortune of Cyrus Whittier and the attempts of his greedy family to wrest it from him. Some of the characters you'll meet include Cyrus' maiden sister, Matilda, playboy and black sheep Chauncey Whittier and his girl friend, "Boopsy" Bishop, along with a very devious lawyer, Cyrus' attractive nurse, Rhonda Ruggles two extremely inept thugs, Lefty Luchessi and Knuckles Noonan and several other Whittier family members.

Full tables may be reserved. Tickets are $15 and include the show and dinner. Call 658-3134 or 658-7447 for information.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

PHOTOGRAPH YOUR HOME

QUESTION: What is the best way to record all of your home possessions, furniture and furnishings so you can have a record in case of fire?

ANSWER: The best, fastest and easiest way to record what you own in your home is to photograph all of your contents. If you don't have a camera, buy, borrow, or rent one and start shooting all through your home. Get everything -- furniture, lamps, tools, appliances, pictures, etc. A movie camera or video camera is probably best, so you can "sweep" each room completely, getting all the items on the floor and on the walls. Keep the photos with your policies...proof-positive of valued possessions.

PHOTOGRAPHING everything in your home is one way to make claiming a loss a lot easier.

Softball team swipes three quick wins

by James Pote

After capturing the division two championship title from last year, this year's Wilmington Girls Varsity Softball team is off to a running start. No team is even close to catching up to them.

Last Thursday, the girls started the season off very sloppy against Andover. They started out with a quick 7-0 lead after the first three innings. The game then got very sloppy as the girls ended up making five errors and all of them occurring after the third inning as they trounced all over Andover by a score of 16-5. Head coach Paul Lyman was not used to this kind of sloppiness.

"I don't know what it was. Maybe they were nervous because it was the first game. They might have lost their concentration after the early lead", expressed Lyman.

However, the offense was able to take control of the game. Once again the Wildcats were swiping bases as they had ten stolen bases against Andover which included three from thirdbaseman Nicole Dussault.

Junior secondbaseman Nancy Pote lead the hitting attack with two doubles and four runs batted in. Her double play partner Laurie Southmayd helped out with her two run inside the park homerun to put the finishing touches on the Warriors.

Next up was Lowell. The MVC really found out very quickly that pitcher Adrienne Fay was back to her form as she shut out Lowell in five innings on a no-hitter performance. The game was called after the fifth inning when Wilmington reached the 15-0 mercy rule.

Fay retired the first nine batters to face her striking out seven of them. She did however, walk a batter as she finished up striking out nine.

Again the combination of hitting and speed made up the difference in this one. Laurie Southmayd, Erin Falzone, Leanne Harris and Fay each had two hits apiece in this romp. Nancy Pote contributed with her two run inside the park homerun over the leftfielder's head, while teammate freshmen catcher Lisa Southmayd drove in three teammates herself.

In the first game against Andover, the Wildcats swiped ten bases. Against Lowell they stole seven which included three from Erin Falzone who has provided a big bat in the number two spot in the batting order.

"Erin is hitting the ball real well. Usually a number two hitter bunts the ball a lot. But, Erin drives the ball and we need her to continue to do that", continued Lyman.

On Tuesday afternoon, the girls made it a perfect 3-0 start as they took Tewksbury by a score of 12-1. It appeared at the start that this one might be a fight for the Wildcats as Wendy Johanon and Holly Perrin each roped base hits with the former a triple for the early 1-0 lead. To no avail Wilmington struck right back.

The Wildcats scored single runs in the first two innings and seven in the third for the 9-1 lead after the first three innings.

Leftfielder Erin Falzone had another impressive game as she was 4-5 with a triple and an RBI. Also contributing were Adrienne Fay with her three hit afternoon and newcomer Kellie O'Donnell with her 2-4 performance driving in three of her teammates.

Fay again cruised through the first five innings before giving way to Lindsay Currier. After the first two batters reached, Fay settled down to retire the next ten batters and 14 of the last 16 with only giving up a single base hit and one walk in between.

In seventeen innings, Fay has given up only four earned runs, six hits, six walks and she has struck out 25 batters for a E.R.A OF 1.65.

Currier came on in the last two innings to supply some relief for Fay. Currier walked two along with hitting a batter but she did not yield a hit and she struck out three batters.

"We really need Lindsay to be ready to go for us. We have a very tough schedule ahead of us", said Lyman.

The girls will really be tested when they travel to Haverhill.

Griese places third

Adrien Grise, a graduate of Wilmington High School is now competing for UMass Lowell.

On April 9, at Muskey Invitational at Northeastern he placed third in the 1500m with a performance of 4:07.31.

Desperate times call for desperate measures. Justin Minor borrowed a broom from the Rec. Dept. to get a basketball down from the backboard where it was stuck as he was shooting baskets at the Town Hall Tuesday.

Track teams trying to catch up

by James Pote

Both the Boys and the Girls WHS track teams fell to Billerica last week, however they both are showing a lot of improvement.

The Boys fell 102-43 with a first place finish by the four by four relay team of Henry Grise, Garrett Whittemore, Brendan Rodgers and eung Won Kim. The latter also came in second place in the 100 meter run.

As for the third place finishes, Marc DiJulia was third in the two mile, Tim Peterson in the 880, Joel Santorelli in the 110 and Kevin Kakamburas in the pole vault.

"Both teams are improving. I'm happy with the efforts thus far", said head coach Frank Kelley.

The girls also improved as they fell by a score of 89-47. They had five first place finishers.

Cherri Lawrence took two of those in the High Jump and Triple Jump. Lisa Timulty in the Javelin as well as Lynette Silva in the Discus and Jill Murphy in the 330 Hurdles.

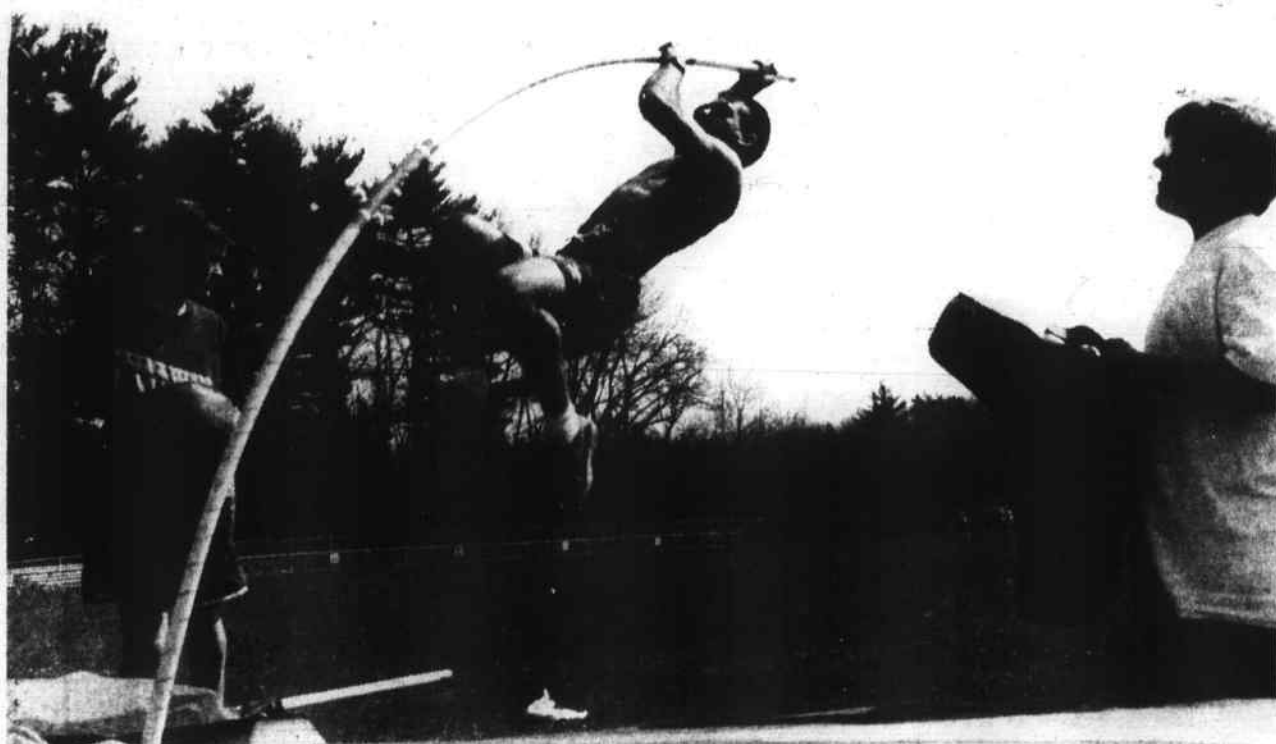

Second Place finishes went to Murphy in the 100 meter hurdles, Amanda Zaya in the 100 and 220 meter run as well as Colleen Stokes in the mile.

Also contributing with their second place accomplishments were Elyce Boisvert in the 440, Kerri Cassella in the 880 and Lynette Silva in the shotput.

Cherice Threshcer placed third in the discus.

On Saturday, the team of Boisvert, Murphy, Cassella and Laurie Johnson combined to take a fifth place in the four by four relay in the Wilmington Invitational Meet.

Baseball team still looking for first win

by James Pote
The Wilmington Varsity Baseball team is off to slow start but appears to be in the right direction. After a 0-3 start including two losses to Bedford, (non-league action) and a little more concentration the boys should get a few wins under their belt.

"We really haven't played that badly. We seemed to have one bad inning (the first two games). If we were to overcome that and overcome our mental mistakes we should be able to get a few wins", said head coach Dick Scanlon.

The boys fell to Andover in their opener 8-1 and then consecutive losses to Bedford 12-1 and 3-2. Already there are signs of improvement.

In the end the Outlaws win

The final quest is over. The Outlaws have won the championship by easily handling the White Team Thursday evening, 5-1 in the first of two semifinal games.

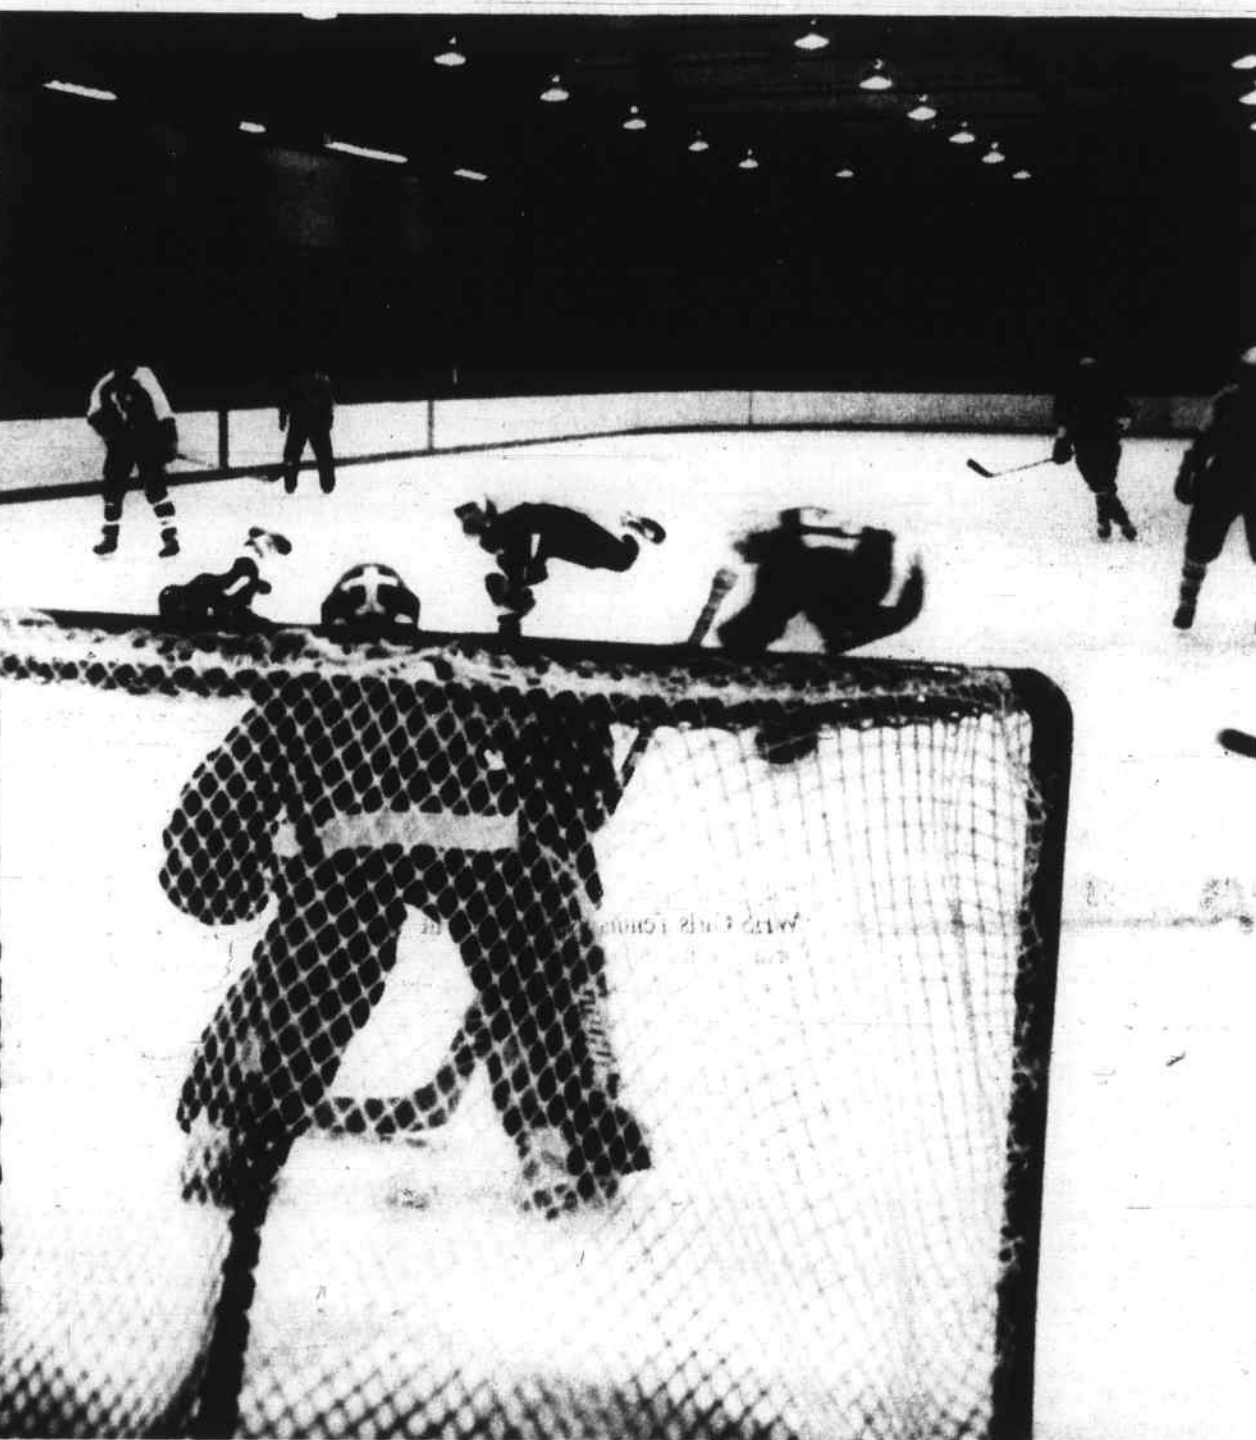

The second game had the Ice Hogs against Golden State with the Ice Hogs winning 6-2. Friday night was the final game that had the powerful Outlaws pitted against the surprising Ice Hogs.

The first period was very close with the Outlaws gaining a 3-2 edge, but in that period it got so chippy both captains, the refs and even the director of the League, Joe Vieira simply said if this play continues there will be ejections. So the second period saw the Outlaws pulling away with goals by Tom McHugh and Bill Sydowsky.

Co-captains Dan Marshall and Eric Murray led the team with heads-up play with assists on six of seven goals. Finally the defense and goaltending of the Outlaws was simply dominate, led by defensive Captain Mark Bere.

Congratulations to all who played this year; for information on next year's league, call 508-658-5428. Looking forward to smacking you guys around again next season.

Basketball camp in 13th season

The 13th annual North Reading Basketball Camp will be held at North Reading High School July 25-29.

The camp is for boys entering grades five through 10. The camp will again be under the direction of Barry Kipnes.

The camp day will run from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Heavy emphasis will be placed on fundamentals and all areas of individual play will be covered. The program of instruction includes station drills, instructional video tapes and individual improvement drills. The campers will be video taped while shooting and the tape will be reviewed with a coach. Campers will play two games every day with each camper playing an equal amount of time.

In the past 12 years, campers have attended from over 25 communities. The camp enrollment has been completely filled the last three years.

Besides the program of instruction, each camper receives a camp t-shirt, a certificate of attendance and a coach's evaluation with suggestions for improvement. Each camper will also receive a 24 page booklet entitled "Skills and Drills: The Fundamentals of basketball and Much More."

This booklet, written by Barry Kipnes, covers all individual basketball skills and describes drills a youngster can do alone to improve his level of play. Over 19,000 copies of "Skills and Drills" have been sold throughout the United States.

For more information and a camp brochure, call 617-593-7072 or write to Barry Kipnes, 26 Kingswood Lane, Lynn, MA 01905.

The best spot for trout -- on a dinner plate

by Bill Conlon
The best part of fishing is to fish, period.

Just getting out there is wonderful, relaxing, peaceful and calming. Or as a "Pluggers" cartoon on my office wall states: Pluggers know that great fishing is when you catch a fish. The rest of the time it's good fishing.

But the payoff to fishing, really, is catching dinner. After all, putting fish in the skillet is the only excuse we have for spending countless man-hours on the water. Sport fishing for trophy bass, etc., etc., is nothing but window dressing if we don't put fish on the table every now and then.

(It makes your home life easier if you serve up a catch every now and again -- trust me.)

With trout wiggling in the streams and ponds right now, courtesy of the almighty hatchery truck, trout is the prime target for dinner anglers this time of year. And if you study the menu at your favorite restaurant, you'll see that trout is a top-of-the-line dish for epicureans. Good stuff indeed.

We'll assume for the nonce that you know how to bring home a limit of trout, and we'll skip directly to the kitchen.

Trout don't need all that much preparation prior to cooking, since they have very small scales and very little "fishy" flavor. Most fish need to have the skin removed to kill the fishy flavor, but trout is fine.

If you can tolerate having dinner look back at you, trout can be simply gutted and that's that. I'm not shy about leaving the head attached, but some people get squeamish. As you wish.

Enormous trout, such as lakies or salmon, can be filleted, or cut into steaks for cooking. Most hatchery trout, however, will fit nicely in the skillet without being cut to size.

My favorite ways to cook trout are as follows:

Fry 'em -- Moisten the fish with a beaten egg, then roll it in flavored bread crumbs. Saltine crackers with spices, rolled between two sheets of waxed paper, make a great coating. Put the fish into a hot skillet until it starts to turn brown, flip it once, and serve it up hot.

Bake 'em -- Bigger trout may be baked, if they're too big for the iron skillet. (I love my iron skillet!) Put a pat of butter in the body cavity and sprinkle with a little flavored salt, then wrap the trout in aluminum foil and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Test the fish with a fork, just to make sure it's done to your liking, and don't be shy about tossing your fish back into the hot box for a few more minutes.

Poach 'em -- I learned this trick a few years ago, and it's become my favorite way to cook trout. Boil up a quart or two of water, with spices added. You can spice the water to the limits of your imagination. Then wrap the trout in a piece of gauze (I used a piece of old gauze curtain that was washed and saved for cooking.) When the water reaches a boil, take the pot off the burner, gently slide in the gauze-wrapped fish, then cover the pot and wait 20 minutes. A pat of butter in the body cavity is optional. I've found that the trout comes out done to perfection by poaching.

On a stick -- The best trout I've ever eaten were tiny little cutthroats, caught in a mountain stream in the high country of Utah. My partner Stew Caldwell dug up a few handfuls of "Spring Beauty" kernals, which are similar to spring potatoes but are no bigger than acorns and are found under these cute little flowers. We boiled the spring beauty kernals and sprinkled with salt, and they were delicious. (Stew is the only person I've ever met who could actually put on weight eating wild foods. He's an expert on the topic.)

The trout were speared on sticks, like hot dogs, and we cooked them over a campfire of scrub oak and sagebrush, then ate the little trout with our fingers. Unbelievable.

The state is stocking the trout for your enjoyment, and most will not survive the long, hot summer. Get 'em while they're hot!

And enjoy your dinner!

--- Tackle Box ---

Did you see the story in the Globe recently about whitewater rafting on the Concord River? The story made one tiny mistake: Rick Barry, who is a teacher in Wilmington, doesn't go by Rich, to my knowledge. Rick's spring business, Wilderness Plus, is once again running people down the Concord's wild waters. Huzzah!

Warriors power pass Celtics as champs

The Warriors and Celtics met for an exciting Tewksbury Youth Basketball championship game Saturday, March 26 at the junior high gymnasium.

The match was a well played game on both sides, with defense keeping both explosive offenses in check. Each and every point had to be earned. The score at the end of the first quarter was six to nothing in favor of the Warriors, with the Celtics keeping the lid on the Warrior offense.

Jonathan Adams executed a clutch three point play at the end of the first half, making the score 11 to 3 in favor of the Warriors. Jason Wagstaff was high scorer for the Warriors with 10 points, while Jonathan Adams contributed seven points.

Matt McGinnis played a sound defensive game for the Warriors. The second half saw the Celtics surge to within six in the third quarter. The final score of the exciting game was 21 to 11.

The win for the Warriors, capped off two successful undefeated seasons. Last year under the leadership of Randy Elliott and Steve McGinnis, the Warriors were undefeated with a record of 12 wins and no losses.

This year under the able leadership of Steve McGinnis and Bernie Wagstaff, the Warriors captured the championship for the second consecutive year, with a record of 13 wins and no losses.

The younger players on the team rose to the occasion this season, to fill the void left by last year's players who graduated to the intermediates. Congratulations have been offered to the players and coaches for their two consecutive seasons without a loss!

The Celtics had a very successful season, finishing the regular season with a record of five wins and five losses, under the leadership of Rich DiPrimio and Mike McDermott.

The Celtics, who were not favored to make the playoffs, stacked up wins in the latter half of the season to propel themselves into the playoffs.

Girls basketball team honored

The Tewksbury Redmen Girls Basketball Boosters Club held their year end banquet and award ceremony on March 31 at VFW Hall.

Players, coaches, family and friends attended. The banquet capped off the activities of the season by the Boosters club. Freshmen Coach Kastritis presented t-shirts to Erica Carney, Jamie Lightfoot, Karen Segur, Jaclyn Orpen, Diane Mills, Kerry Lane, Amy Kelliher, and Kim Zunino.

Coach DiRocco also gave the JV girls t-shirts. The players present were Lori Quinn, Kerry Cullity, Karen Jackson, Sherry Penney, Heidi Meharg, Chrissy Terris, Katie Ronan, and Allyson Downey.

Varsity awards were presented by departing Coach Doug Andersen. He awarded letters and jackets to Leslie Dobbins, Mary Solomine, Holly Perrin, Kristen Bedard, Mandy Deroche, and Susan Perkins. A jacket was presented to the injured Katie Barrows and a letter to Manager Amanda Urquhart.

Five varsity seniors received sweatshirts: Amy Peterson, Megan Landry, Heather Sullivan, Elyce Botto, and Tina Rideout. Coach Anderson was then honored by the Boosters with a plaque for all his years of service and guidance to the girls.

During the season a raffle was conducted to help augment funds. Karen Jackson, Holly Perrin, and Kristen Bedard received starter sweatshirts for their superior ticket sales. The prize winners were drawn during the banquet:

Brazil leads Knicks pass Jazz

"That was our finest game of the year" said the newly crowned champion Knicks' coach Bill Mackey following a 54-41 win over the Jazz in Tewksbury Boys' Intermediate Basketball League before a packed house at Tewksbury's Middle School.

Led by the sharp shooting of Roger Brazil with 16 and Ryan

Mackey with 15, the Knicks fought off the tough Jazz for the first half building upon a five point half time lead to go up 15 by the end of the third quarter.

Although they could not contain center Ralph Perrotti who led the Jazz with 17, the Knicks' broodermose defense of Mackey and Mark Leduc turned Jazz turnovers into easy layups during the pivotal third period.

With Pat Dooling and Brian Robillard controlling the boards, the Knicks held on to the lead throughout the fourth quarter to take the championship.

LOCAL LEISURE & LIVING

Lowell Brewing Company rolls out its flagship "Mill City Amber Ale"

Entertainment complex is planned in brewery building

by Bill Conlon
 Lowell has a brewery again, after long years since the closing of the Harvard Brewery. But this brewery will be much, much more than just a beer factory on the Merrimack.

The Lowell Brewing Company is in full production, on Cabot Street in Lowell beside the Wannalancit Mill building, and its flagship brew is Mill City Amber Ale.

The ale is a rich red in color and the taste is similar to Bass Pale Ale from England. The ale was shipped in kegs at first, but bottles of Mill City Amber Ale are appearing in local package stores and pubs. The D.J. Reardon company will handling the distribution of the Mill City bottled product, while the kegs are delivered by the brewery.

For consumers who have not been exposed to specialty beers or microbrewery products, Mill City might seem unpleasant at first. The ale has a bitterness, due to the use of Pacific Northwest hops, which might be an unpleasant surprise to "Bud" fans.

To truly enjoy Mill City, purchase an entire bottle or draft for yourself and do not accept just a sip. After the first two or three sips, the bitterness of the ale is accepted by the tongue, and the rest of the glass is smooth as silk and delicious. Finish the glass, and you might go back for more.

Mill City Amber Ale is available on tap at the Picadilly Pub in Tewksbury. Look for the tap handle, made from an old mill spindle. The ale is available at a variety of watering holes in Lowell, Chelmsford, Westford, Dracut and other towns, but it will not go nationwide. Mill City is Lowell's own beer, specially made for the Merrimack Valley.

The ale was developed by Brewmaster Will Kemper of California, and Kemper is assisted on a daily basis by Brewer Paul McErlean. Kemper visits periodically from his base in California, while McErlean handles the daily brewing operation.

The state-of-the-art brewery is, by definition, a "microbrewery" since the production is 15,000 barrels of beer per year.

President Guy Haas took visitors and press on a tour of the facility not long ago, and outlined the ambitious plans for the facility, and the beer.

The beer itself, Haas said, will be shipped only within the Merrimack Valley. By limiting distribution, he said, a mystique about the brew will hopefully grow, and visitors will be drawn to the Lowell area to try it.

Mike Carr, from D.J. Reardon, said during the press conference that American beer-drinking tastes are changing, and the change is huge. While specialty beers and homebrewing account for two percent of the beer market, he said, the market is big enough for two percent to mean serious sums of money. A microbrewery such as the Lowell Brewing Company can have a major economic impact on a region, Carr said.

Lowell Brewing Company, Haas pointed out, is developing a Classic Pilsner style lager beer, hopefully to roll out in June. In the fall, an Oktoberfest specialty brew will be made, and Haas said planning is now underway for a full-scale Oktoberfest celebration in Lowell, along the Merrimack River.

Haas said the brewery is planning to brew a Porter or possibly a Stout next Spring, and a non-alcoholic root beer is nearly ready to ship.

Even the packaging for the Mill City Amber Ale is devoted to the Lowell area. The bottle label was designed by artist Janet Lambert-Moore, and the six-pack holders feature stories about Lowell's past and present, along with maps of the region.

But the Lowell Brewing Company has plans much more involved than simply making beer and root beer. The building where the brewery is located will be much, much more than just a brewing plant, if all goes according to plan.

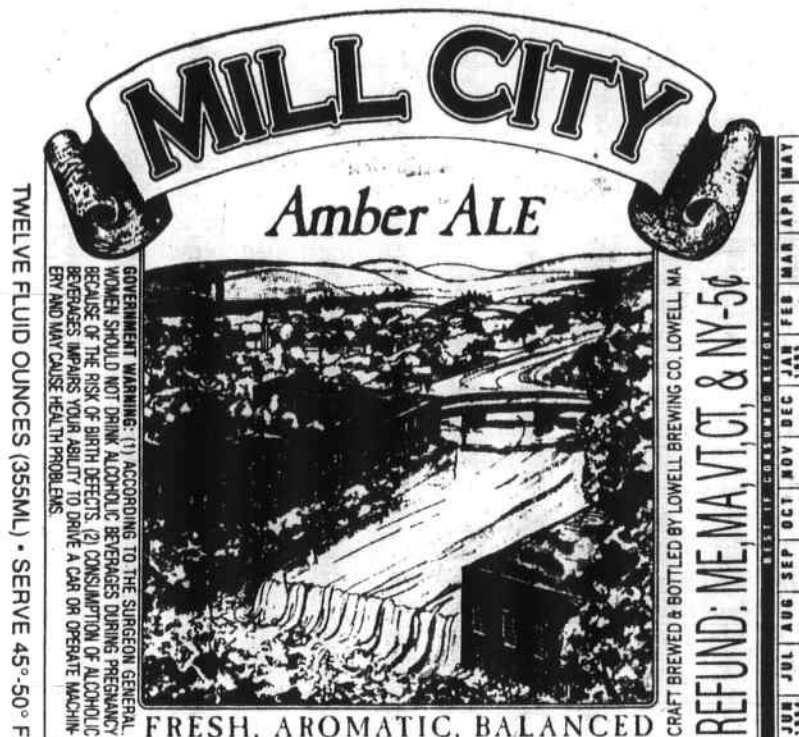

Haas said the former "Dye House" restaurant between the brewery and the Lowell Flick movie theater is now being renovated, hopefully to open this summer.

The second floor of the brewery building will be a 1950s style dance hall and lounge, including billiards, and the third floor will feature an arcade and miniature golf. Haas said negotiations are underway to get the Lowell Flick to change its name and become part of the complex.

Tours of the brewery have begun, with half-hour walkthroughs taking place Thursdays, at 4 and 6; and on Saturdays at 2 and 4. A $1 donation will be asked for the tours, with the proceeds benefitting Lowell's House of Hope. Specialty tours, for homebrewing clubs and the like, can be arranged.

A small gift shop, with its own Mill City Amber Ale tap, will be the gathering place for the tours. The gift shop features Lowell Brewing Company hats and T-shirts, and pins made from Mill City Amber Ale bottle caps.

In a humorous aside, Director Carol Durand of the Whistler House Museum suggested that she should handle the distribution of the new bottled Mill City Amber Ale, not the D. J. Reardon firm. In a raffle held before the beer had been brewed or bottled, Durand said, the Whistler House Museum raised $275 for the first case of Mill City Amber Ale.

The Mill City Amber Ale label, done in autumn colors by local artist Janet Lambert-Moore, includes a dating system. The beer, which has no preservatives, should be consumed before the date marked on the label, or Lowell Brewing Company will replace the bottle.

Lowell now has a brewery again, and the facility will become much, much more in the future.

For now, however, pop open a Mill City Amber Ale and taste what a craft-brewed specialty beer can be, but don't expect it to taste like a Bud. It certainly isn't Budweiser.

Thrill-seeking in the state of (yawn) Maine

by Bill Conlon
 When I take my vacation this year, I want to catch up on some sleep, if nobody interferes. It's been a long, difficult year for me, and I believe I deserve a lengthy nap in a swaying hammock.

And I've found the ideal place to hang my hammock -- Maine! There are surely enough stout trees to bear the load, and there aren't too many distractions, either.

I've got graphic proof that Maine is the place for a snooze. Last week at the office we received a calendar of events from the state of Maine tourist bureau, and I'm convinced that Maine won't challenge Disney World or Mazatlan as a hotspot for exciting vacations. Not at all.

Here are a few of the listings from the calendar. See what you think:

July 2-4: Bath Heritage Days. I'll skip any rudeness about the heritage of taking a bath, thanks. The event features such events as the Annual Shipbuilders' Triathlon, and other folksy items. But a Shipbuilder's Triathlon? I picture a ship builder as an elderly craftsman turning out classic wooden boats with just hand tools. Can they handle a Triathlon?

July 8 - 10: Downeast Dulcimer & Folk Harp Festival, Bar Harbor. Are there enough dulcimer players and harpists in all of North America to hold a festival? There must be.

July 9: The 10th Annual "Moxie" Festival, in Lisbon Falls. Quote: "A day-long celebration of the mystique of the word and drink." Ah, yes.

July 10-17: The 47th Maine Potato Blossom Festival, in Port Fairfield. Quote: "A week-long celebration of the potato industry, held when the majority of the potato fields are in full bloom." The week's highlight may be the coronation of the Maine Potato Queen, or perhaps the Little Spuds Jamboree for kids, or the annual industry dinner "honoring an outstanding farm family." I didn't make any of this up, really I didn't.

July 16: Mollycodd Day, held in Bethel. A full day of events, with a frog jumping contest, a lumberjack contest, a fiddler's contest and more. Is this the state where Stephen King lives? At times, I start to wonder.

I might pencil in Logging Museum Festival Days, July 29 and 30, at the Rangeley Lakes Region's Logging Museum. Quote: "The 14th Annual event celebrating the importance of forest industries to the area." Friday night will see the Little Miss Woodchip contest, an annual must-see.

The first week of August will see the 20th Anniversary Celebration of Wooden Boat Magazine, in Southwest Harbor. That what is says.

Later in the month of August, look for Sudbury-Canada Days in Bethel, August 12-14. This event will see History Professor Jerg Daniell from Dartmouth speaking on settlement patterns in Northern New England, and Civil War re-enactments. Unless I'm wrong, there weren't too many Civil War battles fought in Maine.

If I can roll out of the hammock in time, I'll try to catch the Retired Skipper's Race in Castine Harbor on August 20. Or is that too exciting? How about "Skowhegan Log Days" in the week of August 22-27? No, the promise (threat?) of "downtown moonlight madness with dancing in the streets" might be too stimulating for a hammock napper, I suppose.

I'm kidding, of course, by taking a poke at Maine. Their state motto of "Maine: The Way Life Should Be" is exactly true. Hometown events and real folks are the way life should be in this fast-paced, hectic world. We get too much excitement in our daily lives, and slowing down would be a definite boon to our mental health.

But a Retired Skipper's Race? Or a lecture on old settlement patterns? Those are scandalously exciting, you think?

Arne Brun Lie

"It's a miracle I'm here today"

By KEN MAGUIRE

The next time you hear someone moan and groan about the economy, the government or their jobs, tell them to talk to Arne Brun Lie. From Norway, he was a resistance fighter in World War II, was near death in several German concentration camps and watched his friends march to their execution.

"It is a miracle that I am here today," Lie, author and ship builder, told a Sweetser Lecture audience of 200 late last week at the Wakefield-Lynnfield United Methodist Church. "It took me 40 years to come to terms with what I saw and suffered."

After a brief account of his war days, Lie, 67, introduced "Passage," a short film that documents Lie's sail across the Atlantic Ocean two years ago. As with many Norwegians, sailing was a first love for Lie. He dreamed of sailing as a prisoner of war.

After a near-fatal heart attack two years ago, Lie decided it was time to confront his past. He revisited the prison camps where he was held and recorded much of the trip, revealing the horrors that have haunted him for years. "Passage" blends clips from the prison camp visit with the day-to-day events of crossing the Atlantic.

At age 18, when most kids these days are pondering a career or studying at college, Lie joined the Resistance to fight the Germans, who invaded his homeland of Norway. Several friends also joined. "My friends were on a raid of Oslo" in 1944, he said. "I didn't go. I was still in training. I was taken prisoner in bed."

The Gestapo jailed Lie, deeming him a "dangerous person," a "Night and Fog" prisoner. Night and Fog would later become the title of one of Lie's books. Said Lie, "Instead of executing me, they sent me to some awful places." His arrest came shortly after the Germans decreed to kill Resistance fighters "in the most bestial way...to be humiliated, tortured, morally destroyed and worked to death in secret camps in Germany. It was the Gestapo's personal revenge."

"Passage"

Lie set out with filmmaker David Conover (an avid sailor himself, armed with a camcorder) to cross the Atlantic in his small boat "Tresbelle." It was a race with some 40 other competitors that started in Plymouth, England. The finish line was Newport, Rhode Island, with three weeks of solitude, memories and hard work ahead of them to confront the ocean and Lie's past.

"Passage" flashed back to Germany, as Lie strolled through the grounds of his old prison camps. While there, he recalled, "My dream was about the deep beautiful ocean. I feel a sense of freedom when I am out on the ocean."

His old friends, who were executed shortly after their arrests, "are always with me when I go out to sea." He watched his friends being marched to their death one cold morning. On their way, "they stopped and waved to me and said 'see you later.' I should have been executed. By mistake, I had been left out."

He's not left out in his nightmares, however. Speaking from the wooded area of the camp where the Germans shot his friends, he said "In my nightmare, I come here to the woods. I line up with them (his friends) and the Germans kill us all."

It got worse. His next stop was Natzweiler prison camp. Lie and other prisoners were marched there, barely surviving with little food. His introduction to the camp was not in the least bit inspiring. A weakened Norwegian prisoner slumped on a hill before the entrance to the camp told him, "Welcome to Hell."

"Hell" was no exaggeration. The top Natzweiler official gathered the new prisoners together, pointed to a chimney stack in the middle of the camp and told them, "The only way out of this camp...is through that chimney."

Luck

"I never had the feeling of giving up," Lie said. In addition to his physical and mental perseverance, he attributes his survival largely to luck. It was luck that the Germans did not round him up for execution in the first camp he was held in.

Dysentery and 16-hour work days brought Lie to new lows at Natzweiler. "I knew I would die if I stayed there," he said. Allied pressure forced the Germans to move the prisoners to another camp, this time by train. "I do not know how many days we were on that train. I was hallucinating." At the new camp, he was pulled off the train, literally. "I was dug out from the pile of bodies."

Perhaps it was luck again that brought Lie together with an English prisoner named John Hopper (pronounced "Jann" in Lie's modest accent). While Lie suffered from typhus in January 1945, Hopper kept spirits up among the prisoners. He often ripped into the guards by shouting back at them and leading choruses of old English pub tunes. "So English," is how Lie describes him.

Pets help raise funds for Stone Zoo project

There was an enthusiastic response to the Easter Pet Photo fundraiser held at Stoneham Animal Hospital. Thanks to all the animals who urged their owners to bring them to Stoneham to pose with the Easter Bunny and help raise funds for the new Education Resource Library now under construction through the efforts of Friends of Stone Zoo.

The Zoo also offered special thanks to Dr. Mark Jawitz and his staff for planning this event, to Adams Studios for their photographic patience and to Joker's Wild in North Reading for providing the bunny costume.

Wakefield Festival Chorus presents concert May 1

The Wakefield Festival Chorus will present its third concert of this season on Sunday, May 1, at 7 p.m. at First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield. The program will feature a performance of the oratorio "The Light of Life" by Edward Elgar.

This work is based on the biblical story of a blind man whose vision is miraculously restored. In typical oratorio style, the characters in the story are sung by vocal soloists and the chorus sings the part of the crowds of people who are involved in the events, thus creating the effect of a musical drama. Guest vocal soloists who will be featured in this performance are Margaret O'Keefe, soprano, Dorothy Green, alto, Walter Boyce, tenor, and Mark Andrew Cleveland, bass.

The program will also include the premiere performance of a choral piece commissioned by and for the Festival Chorus entitled "Truth in a Cage" and written by Fred Broer.

The Wakefield Festival Chorus is one of the most active community choruses in the Wakefield area. Members of the chorus come from many different local communities such as Melrose, Malden, Reading, Stoneham, Lynnfield, Danvers, Burlington, and Wakefield. The chorus, now in its sixth season, performs three concerts each year.

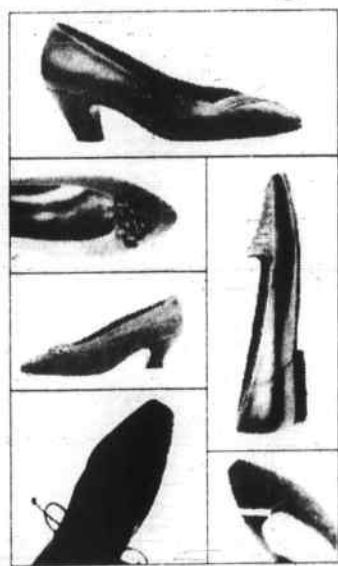

The concert scheduled for May 1 is the third and final concert of this 1993-94 season. Other concerts this season included a 350th Gala Concert last November which featured a variety of American music, and the popular Christmas concert "Carols by Candlelight" last December. The chorus has also performed many major choral works over the past five seasons including Brahms' "Requiem," Haydn's "The Creation," and Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

The Wakefield Festival Chorus is under the direction of Dr. Fred Broer. Dr. Broer, an experienced conductor, composer, and performer, holds a doctorate degree in music from Boston University, is Music Director at First Parish Church and Director of the North Shore Conservatory of Music at Endicott College in Beverly. The chorus will be accompanied by Steven Young performing on the three-manual Austin pipe organ in First Parish Church.

The Concert on Sunday, May 1, at 7 p.m. will be presented at First Parish Congregational Church, One Church Street in Wakefield on Lake Quannapowitt. The beautiful architecture and excellent acoustics of the church make it one of the most ideal settings for musical performances in the local area.

A freewill offering will be taken with a suggested donation year.

About The Towns by Phyllis Nissen

But she's Rich already.

New job in Melrose

The Melrose personnel board has approved and the Board of Aldermen officially created the job of Memorial Hall Manager. Millie Rich, who had been unofficially acting as building manager is now being paid $1,000 a month and a 12 percent commission on monthly rentals surpassing $1,500.

Any payment could be considered an extravagance. After all, she's Rich already.

Massport about to take off

Massachusetts Port Authority officials have filed key environmental documents for three projects which are part of the Logan Airport Modernization Program - and Thomas Kinton, Winchester resident, Woburn native and Logan Airport's Director of Aviation, sees those documents as important steps toward preparing Logan for the 21st century.

The filing represents a major milestone in Logan's 10-year, $1.1 billion infrastructure program, setting the stage for a more concerted community outreach effort to build public awareness about the program.

The projects include: 1) a new United States Customs facility and West Concourse added to Terminal E, the international terminal; 2) a new 5,700 space, on-site parking garage to consolidate all public parking capacity into one central facility; and 3) a new fuel distribution system which promises to be far more cost-effective and environmentally sound than the current system.

You read it here first

Or maybe not. A Mcfastfood-chain in the Delray Beach area of Florida is the first in the country to demolish its playground and replace it with a shuffleboard court.

Ink spots in Reading

Three Reading police lieutenants and six sergeants, members of the Reading Superior Officers' Association, have inked a two-year deal which provides for a 2.5 percent raise this year and 4.2 percent next year, according to the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

The contract, signed by the Reading Board of Selectmen and superior president Lt. Robert Silva is retroactive to July 3, 1993 and will expire on June 30, 1995. According to Town Manager Peter Hechenbleikner, the contract is basically the same as the contract signed two years ago - except for a schedule change to four 10-hour days instead of the traditional five eight-hour days. If that schedule proves unsatisfactory, changes will be discussed.

Pumped up in Wakefield

Wakefield Fire Chief David Parr has asked for equipment which could cost $400,000.

Both the Fire Protection Association and the Fire Insurance Underwriters recommend that fire apparatus be replaced after 15 years of first-line service and 20 years of reserve service. Wakefield has been relying on a 1956 pumper and had - at the time of the request - a 1975 ladder truck in the shop, with support from Reading waiting in the wings.

"The ladder truck," says Parr, in the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," is top priority."

The good news is readers are reading, right?

"I know you only do Stoneham news," says the caller from Wakefield, "but could you put in something about a show that's coming up in Wakefield?"

Followed by: "I know you only do Woburn news," says the caller from Lynnfield, "but could you put something in about the play we're doing?"

We are interested in any, all and especially the most bizarre news from Woburn, Reading, Winchester, Burlington, Wakefield, Lynnfield, North Reading, Wilmington, Tewksbury, Stoneham, Malden, Medford, and Melrose.

And even, if it's really absurd, the occasional event from an outlying town or city.

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Arne Brun Lie

From S-1

The end of the war was closing in, which finally spelled freedom for Lie and company. The Swedish Red Cross liberated his camp, the third camp in one full year of captivity, in March 1945.

Lie's luck, seemingly good during the war, went sour during the trans-Atlantic journey. About a week away from Newport, Tresbelle's mast broke, forcing Lie and Conover to seek the nearest port, which was St. John's, Newfoundland. After repairing the mast, Lie finished the journey a month later.

Ellen, his second wife after a divorce in the early 1980s, and their two young children met him in Newport. Ellen believes the trip, considered strenuous for anyone, let alone a recovering heart attack victim, will extend Arne's life. Lie continues to lecture and develops salmon fishing farms. The Lies live in Ipswich.

Cornelius Sweetser

Cornelius Sweetser was born in Wakefield on April 6, 1808. At age 14, he left school to work and six years later was into his own shoe business. It would continue to thrive, even after he moved to Saco, Maine, in 1846. He married, had no children, and died in 1881.

His legacy lives on. According to Wakefield historians, Sweetser wrote an in-depth will, remembered for its thoughtfulness for his hometown. He left $10,000 to the Town of Wakefield to be held in trust, "to safely invest the same and expend the income yearly in providing such lectures as will tend to improve and elevate the public mind and to impose a reasonable fee for admission to such lectures and pay over the net proceeds of the same to such charitable organization in said Wakefield as the municipal officers of said town may designate to be distributed among the worthy poor of said town."

$23,000 fundraiser

Austin "BASH" '94 a success

Nearly 300 guests of Austin Prep were treated to the school's seventh annual gala benefit dinner auction, Emerald City "BASH" recently at the Casa di Fior, Wilmington. As a result of this annual fund-raising event, over $23,000 will benefit the Reading school.

According to Austin Director of Development, Michael MacNeil, the BASH has become an important source of support for the school. Said MacNeil, "Dozens of volunteers make it an enjoyable and profitable event that captures everyone's imagination."

The BASH has achieved great popularity because the school community - parents, students, past parents, alumni and friends - work together for many months to create what is the most dynamic event on the school's social/fund-raising calendar. Since its inception in 1988, the Austin Auction BASH has raised over $125,000 to benefit school programs and student scholarships.

This year's event presented 350 new items for sale to highest bidders while recreating the atmosphere of the classic movie musical, which starred Judy Garland as the young girl swept-up from Kansas to the magical Land of Oz.

The ballroom of the Casa di Fior was transformed into "Emerald City" for the evening. Guests who arrived beginning at 5 p.m., were greeted by student ushers and live characters dressed as Dorothy, with a real dog "Toto," the Tinman, the Cowardly Lion and the Scarecrow. They were able to follow the "yellow brick road" to the "silent auction" display of goods and services awaiting for written bids.

Guests enjoyed hors d'oeuvres, served by Prep students. Many took part in the 50/50 BASHCASH raffle, where the grand prize winner walked away $3,600 richer. Entertainment also came from the sounds of the Festival Brass Band.

Following dinner, the evening's main event, the live auction, really got things in high gear. Professional auctioneer Jim St. Jean of Manchester, NH, brought down his gavel just after 9 p.m. Eighty items went up for bidding including collectibles, gift certificates, home furnishings, airline tickets to "anywhere," vacation getaways, and new appliances.

Among the highlights were autographed items by sports star Ray Bourque and Cam Neely, of the Boston Bruins, and a Boston Pops poster autographed by Conductor John Williams. All items were generously donated from Prep friends and merchants throughout Boston and the Merrimack Valley.

Austin Prep is a coeducational Catholic college preparatory school with grades 6-12. Students come from 64 communities in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

How to succeed in business? Try Malden.

Goodbye Lynnfield, Hello Malden

Having been dismissed this fall from his position as director of school business services in Lynnfield, Edward Maguire has just become the business manager for the Malden Public Schools.

Hired by Malden Superintendent of Schools Dr. George Holland at a salary of $45,000 (a $921 raise), Maguire inherits an FY'94 budget deficit which stood at $1.5 million in January but with anticipated reimbursements is expected to decrease to $483,000 by the end of the fiscal year, according to the Lynnfield "Villager."

Lynnfield Superintendent of Schools Dr. John Flores dismissed Maguire, according to the "Villager," because of his role in an unexpected FY'93 budget deficit and problems with developing school bus routes in a timely manner.

In their effort to maintain an extensive collection of periodicals for students, the Stoneham High library people urge you to adopt a magazine, and Stoneham High marketing students are soliciting donations from individuals as well as local businesses.

For more information on Stoneham High's latest venture, please call Tricia DiPietro in the SHS library at (617)279-3810.

Burlington's John Fogelberg has just won his seventh consecutive three-year-term on the Burlington School Committee. It's his 18th year and his 83rd, all at the same time.

Massachusetts' cure for spring fever

After one of the most trying winters in New England history, visitors don't need to try to have a good time in Massachusetts this spring. The rewards of a new season are plentiful - fresh air, fun outdoor activities, and flower festivals galore.

Hit the Trails

Outdoor adventures abound in Massachusetts. Hikers will enjoy the challenge of climbing Mount Greylock, the state's highest peak. Located in Lanesboro in the upper corner of the Berkshires Hills, the Mt. Greylock State Reservation (413-499-4262) has 35 miles of hiking trails including a section of the Appalachian Trail.

Vacationers preferring a less strenuous excursion can head to the peaceful beaches of the Cape Cod National Seashore (508-349-3785). The temptation to frolic by the coast is irresistible along the 27,000 acres of natural resources including beaches, trails, marshes, woodlands and sand dunes. Outdoor enthusiasts can explore for miles.

The great outdoors are not restricted to the Massachusetts' coasts and countryside. The Boston Park Rangers offer guided tours through the Emerald Necklace, (617-524-1718) a network of nine parks strung together to create a five-mile long stretch of green within the city limits. Bikers, hikers and leisure walkers can make their way along the trails exploring areas such as Franklin Park, the Charles River Esplanade and the Arnold Arboretum.

Fanciful Flowers

A fragrant backdrop for dozens of outdoor activities spans the Bay State from the heart of Boston to towns in the countryside and by the seashore. Along the Mohawk Trail, the vibrant Bridge of Flowers at Shelburne Falls, a 1908 trolley bridge, is transformed into a 400-foot flowered pathway each spring. Pedestrians can stroll across the scenic sight and enjoy the variety of flowers and plants. In Boston, the world's smallest suspension bridge sits in Boston's flower-filled Public Garden. On April 16, the Swan Boats awaken from their winter hibernation and carry passengers under the bridge and around the lagoon. Boat rides continue through the summer months. If it's raining, visitors can smell the flowers indoors at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum's (617-566-1401) flower-viewing courtyard.

On Lilac Sunday, May 22, a special celebration is held from sunrise to sunset. Lilac lovers can see more than 400 varieties of their favorite flower in bloom and the largest collection of lilacs in North America at the Arnold Arboretum (617-524-1718) in the Jamaica Plain neighborhood of Boston.

Spring is an ideal time to head to Cape Cod and the islands. The 19th Annual Daffodil Festival (508-228-1700) is a sure sign of springtime on Nantucket Island, April 22-24. Nantucket is a browser's paradise as antique, craft and specialty stores open their doors for the season. The island, nicknamed "Grey Lady of the Sea," is adorned with bright yellow flowers during the festival. Shop windows come to life along the quaint streets during the island's window decorating contest. An antique car parade drives through the center of town with daffodils bursting from car windows.

At Franklin Park in Boston on May 21, it's not a bird or a plane but thousands of kites that soar through the sky at the 25th Annual Kite Festival, (617-635-4505). Kids of any age can create their own personalized kites at the kite making clinic. Musical groups and acrobatic acts entertain the crowd.

In Worcester County, at the New England Science Center (508-791-9211) families can make a day trip to learn the ecology of their own back yard and the world on the 60 acre grounds of the museum and wildlife center, open year-round.

In Massachusetts, spring fever is as easy to cure as it is to catch. For additional suggestions on how to plan an outdoor adventure in Massachusetts, the 1994 Massachusetts Getaway Guide is available by calling 1-800-447-MASS, Ext. 300.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Everyone who reads Woodchips must know that I hate long political speeches, soap box oratory and long sermons. I remember when my Aunt Nora sat near the door of the church, and as soon as the baby in her arms started to cry, she would get up and leave. My Uncle John told me how that secret worked. If the sermon was too long and repetitive, she would 'pinch' the baby's bottom and, with the poor kid screeching in her arms, she would get up and leave. Two or three perfect strangers would leave with her, making people believe they were part of the family.

"Your Honor," a sailor told Judge John MacLeod, "the fight started when that man wanted to use the phone as I was talking with my girlfriend. He pushed open the door of the telephone booth, grabbed me by my collar and threw me out in the street." Judge MacLeod said, "I can understand why you were irritated. Is that when the fight started?" "No, your Honor, I got furious when he reached in the telephone booth again, grabbed my girl and threw her out too!" school committee was debating the feasibility of having seatbelts in the school buses. After prolonged pro and con arguments, the chairman noticed a veteran school bus driver in the audience. He was asked his opinion and expert advice on the matter. A wounded driver with a bandage on his right ear got up slowly and with a quivering voice said, "Seatbelts would help but, in my bus, straitjackets would be a lot!"

Frank Hogan didn't go to school after a terrific snowstorm. The next day the teacher wanted a note from his mother. Veronica (Ronnie) wrote this note, "Dear Teacher, The snowdrifts were 18 inches high and my son's legs are 14 inches long. That's why Frank Hogan didn't go to school." Those were the days when the school day would start with a prayer, then we would recite the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by the class singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Michael Coughlin would then sing the next line, "Sweet land of Lipton Tea."

Tony Stack said to his wife, Mary, "I think I'll go out and mow the lawn." "Why you idiot! it's raining." "That's o'kay, I'll take an umbrella out with me." A little old man in a pub seemed very sad and lonely. Kevin Fisher, a good samaritan, went over to him and asked, "What's the problem friend?" "All my friends avoid me and no one wants to sit here with me." "Cheer up," Kevin said, "Have a drink on me, what will you have?" "I'll have a double whiskey with a scotch sidecar and a beer chaser." "Holy Mackerel!" Kevin shouted, "No wonder you're lonely, you old buzzard!"

Three missionaries appeared at the Pearly Gates, but had to wait at the end of a long line. Suddenly a taxi driver joined them. When the keeper of the keys saw him, he beckoned him to come to the head of the line. The missionaries couldn't understand this preferential treatment so one of them went up to the one in charge and said, "We are three men of the cloth. We have preached for many years. Why does a mere taxi driver get ahead of us?" The keeper of the keys smiled and replied, "He was a Boston taxi driver and he has scared hell out of more people in one week than the three of you have all your lives!"

My Aunt Nora had her picture taken at a studio by a professional photographer. When she saw the proofs she exclaimed, "Good grief! I came out awful! The last time you took my picture I looked wonderful." The photographer smiled and said, diplomatically, "Nora, don't forget that when I took those pictures I was 10 years younger!"

To hide the fact that his grandfather was hanged for stealing a horse, Tony Stack rewrote his family's history saying, "Grandpa Dennis died while taking part in a 'public ceremony' when the platform gave way." I am happy to report that the upholsterer who was sick has 'recovered' nicely...

Everyone is a boss at my house. Kathy bosses me, the kids boss the dog and I can say anything I want to the parakeets.

An American soldier serving in the Persian Gulf received a "Dear John" letter from his girlfriend. She asked him to return her picture she had given to him. He took it real cool. He asked his buddies to give him a spare picture of their girlfriends. He shipped them all in a good sized packet to his former girlfriend with this note, "I forgot what you look like. I want you to pick out your picture and send the rest back to me!"

A man in the Shawmut Bank shouted, "Did anyone drop a roll of bills with a rubber band around it?" Three men stepped forward claiming that they did.

"Here you are men," the Good Samaritan said, "Here's your rubber band."... I asked Ryan Powers, "What's your cat's name?" "Ben Hur," Ryan replied. "Gee, that's an odd name for a cat." "Well," Ryan said, "We called it Ben until it had kittens."

"Cops and Robbersons", Short Takes

"Cops and Robbersons" starring Chevy Chase, Jack Palance, Dianne Wiest, Robert Davi. Directed by Michael Ritchie. Written by Bernie Somers. Produced by Ned Tanen, Nancy Graham Tanen, Ronald L. Schwary. Rated PG.

It's almost like a curse. With few exceptions of late, if Chevy Chase is starring in a movie, it's going to stink up the joint. "Cops and Robbersons" isn't one of those exceptions.

Chase and his somewhat dysfunctional suburban family just happen to live next door to a murderous, ridiculously naive mobster (Robert Davi). As head of the Robberson clan, Chase allows the police to use his house as the center of a stake-out operation. Since Chase's character, Norman, is completely addicted to cop shows, he couldn't be happier. Norman thinks the cops will want him to play along.

The Robberson clan is supposed to be a mildly eccentric bunch. There is Norman, who is nearly comatose and garners no respect from his family. The mother, played by Diane Wiest, is much livelier and interesting. A superman who rises before dawn to bake bread, she is constantly cleaning, cooking, decorating and keeping the family in line. The kids include a sexpot teenage daughter, a surly teenager son intent on taking up smoking and a five-year-old boy who thinks he's a vampire and sleeps in his toy chest.

Unfortunately, this bunch is much wackier on paper than in the flesh. Aside from Jack Palance's grizzled detective, the only character with any personality is Wiest's tough as nails mother. A superb actress, Wiest lets you know we are seeing more than a frenetic little home-maker. Chase, on the other hand, is simply excruciating to watch. His fumble-bumble schtick is now slow and anticipated, while his acting style has become moribund.

The whole idea here is to take an improbable situation and make it real enough to be funny. We are to believe the cops would take over a room with a five-year-old boy still sleeping in it. We are to believe that the homicidal gangster next door is grossly gullible. And we are to accept that this oh so average family would simply embrace Palance's mean, uncaring cop. Maybe, if Chase's slapstick was making magic and the dialogue had some jokes written into it.

As is, this movie is so unfunny you can hear yourself aging while you sit through it. In fact, it is the usually unfunny Palance who gets the film's one laugh. Director Michael Ritchie, who left the sound mike in ore than one shot, took a script with barely enough material for a half-hour sit-com and used it to beat the life out of his actors. This one isn't worth renting when it comes out on video, which will probably be next week.

Threesome is just your average college comedy involving alcohol, heterosexuality, homosexuality, bisexuality and a menage a trois. However, the combination of Lara Flynn Boyle, Stephen Baldwin, and Josh Charles is neither humorous nor titillating. Director Andrew Fleming couldn't decide if he wanted a campus comedy or a serious look at sexuality. Blending the two genres just doesn't work. Rated R. *

Jimmy Hollywood is a strange little film by writer/director Barry Levinson. It stars Joe Pesci as a frustrated, bleached blond actor who creates the perfect role for himself: a vigilante willing to take back the streets of L.A. The blurring of reality and entertainment is intriguing, but Levinson's style is too comedic for such a dark subject. Rated R. **

Four Weddings and a Funeral is a spirited, intelligent comedy by Mike Newell ("Enchanted April") that is as warm as it is witty. Hugh Grant is the commitment-shy Brit who feels he's missing out on something as he attends wedding after wedding, then finds himself swooning over American Andie McDowell at one of these ceremonies. She is, of course, engaged to someone else. Great characters, clever writing, fab direction. Rated R. ****

The House of the Spirits is a well-intentioned, but badly miscalculated film by director Billy August. A generational drama following a Latin American family, it is about men who try to control and tame the world as women rule the emotional, intangible sides of life. The intriguing, if miscast actors include Jeremy Irons, Meryl Streep, Glenn Close, Winona Ryder and Antonio Banderas. Based on Isabel Allende's epic novel, it just doesn't have the bewitching charm it needed. Rated R. ** 1/2

The Paper chronicles 24 hours beneath the shadow of a major New York tabloid. Director Ron Howard captures the adrenaline rush of the news biz, as well as the tarnished romances and eccentric behaviors that go with the territory.

TRISTAR PICTURES' Cops and Robbersons, a comedy in which a suburban family is thrown into pandemonium when a grizzled cop (Palance) moves into their home during a stakeout, stars Fay Masterson, Miko Hughes, Chevy Chase, Jack Palance, Dianne Wiest and Jason James Richter.

Sharp reality slices through a manic and witty plot that makes this newspaper film on par with the Howard Hawks' 1940 classic, "His Girl Friday." In fact, the only misstep is Glenn Close's stereotypically written woman-as-witch editor. The rest of the energetic cast includes Michael Keaton, Marisa Tomei, Randy Quaid and Robert Duvall. Rated R. *** 1/2

Major League II is a pale, insipid sequel to the weak 1989 comedy. Though the Cleveland Indians are coming off a championship season, they once again return as idiotic misfits. There is almost no plot, the actors mostly sleepwalk, and the production values are uninspired.
